EXPLANATIONS OF TERMS USED AND RULES FOLLOWED IN COMPILING RECORDS.

Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed, omitting all covenants and warranty.

C. a G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed consideration, he really grants or conveys the property for a valuable consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it.

The street and avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given. When the date of drawing is other than in the current year the stated year is given. When both the dates are in the same year the year follows the second date.

The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:482-10, denote that the property mentioned is in section 2, block 482, lot 10.

It should also be noted in section and block numbers that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only and the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction. Valuations are from the assessment roll of 1914.

T. S. preceding the consideration in a conveyance means that the deed or conveyance has been recorded under the Torren System.

Flats and apartment houses are classified as tenements.

Residences as dwellings.

All Christian names, streets, avenues, states and months are abbreviated when possible, also in some instances names of Banks, Trusts and Insurance Companies.

The number in ( ) preceding the serial number to the right of the date line, at head of this page is the Index number for the Checking Index.

The Star following names of street or avenue in the Bronx Conveyances, Leases and Mortgages indicates that the property recorded is in the annexed district, for which there is no section or block number.

EXPLANATIONS OF TERMS USED AND RULES FOLLOWED IN COMPILING RECORDS.

Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed, omitting all covenants and warranty.

C. a G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed consideration, he really grants or conveys the property for a valuable consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it.

The street and avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given. When the date of drawing is other than in the current year the stated year is given. When both the dates are in the same year the year follows the second date.

The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:482-10, denote that the property mentioned is in section 2, block 482, lot 10.

It should also be noted in section and block numbers that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only and the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction. Valuations are from the assessment roll of 1914.

T. S. preceding the consideration in a conveyance means that the deed or conveyance has been recorded under the Torren System.

Flats and apartment houses are classified as tenements.

Residences as dwellings.

All Christian names, streets, avenues, states and months are abbreviated when possible, also in some instances names of Banks, Trusts and Insurance Companies.

The number in ( ) preceding the serial number to the right of the date line, at head of this page is the Index number for the Checking Index.

The Star following names of street or avenue in the Bronx Conveyances, Leases and Mortgages indicates that the property recorded is in the annexed district, for which there is no section or block number.

EXPLANATIONS OF TERMS USED AND RULES FOLLOWED IN COMPILING RECORDS.

Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed, omitting all covenants and warranty.

C. a G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed consideration, he really grants or conveys the property for a valuable consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it.

The street and avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given. When the date of drawing is other than in the current year the stated year is given. When both the dates are in the same year the year follows the second date.

The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:482-10, denote that the property mentioned is in section 2, block 482, lot 10.

It should also be noted in section and block numbers that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only and the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction. Valuations are from the assessment roll of 1914.

T. S. preceding the consideration in a conveyance means that the deed or conveyance has been recorded under the Torren System.

Flats and apartment houses are classified as tenements.

Residences as dwellings.

All Christian names, streets, avenues, states and months are abbreviated when possible, also in some instances names of Banks, Trusts and Insurance Companies.

The number in ( ) preceding the serial number to the right of the date line, at head of this page is the Index number for the Checking Index.

The Star following names of street or avenue in the Bronx Conveyances, Leases and Mortgages indicates that the property recorded is in the annexed district, for which there is no section or block number.

EXPLANATIONS OF TERMS USED AND RULES FOLLOWED IN COMPILING RECORDS.

Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed, omitting all covenants and warranty.

C. a G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed consideration, he really grants or conveys the property for a valuable consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it.

The street and avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given. When the date of drawing is other than in the current year the stated year is given. When both the dates are in the same year the year follows the second date.

The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:482-10, denote that the property mentioned is in section 2, block 482, lot 10.

It should also be noted in section and block numbers that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only and the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction. Valuations are from the assessment roll of 1914.

T. S. preceding the consideration in a conveyance means that the deed or conveyance has been recorded under the Torren System.

Flats and apartment houses are classified as tenements.

Residences as dwellings.

All Christian names, streets, avenues, states and months are abbreviated when possible, also in some instances names of Banks, Trusts and Insurance Companies.

The number in ( ) preceding the serial number to the right of the date line, at head of this page is the Index number for the Checking Index.

The Star following names of street or avenue in the Bronx Conveyances, Leases and Mortgages indicates that the property recorded is in the annexed district, for which there is no section or block number.

EXPLANATIONS OF TERMS USED AND RULES FOLLOWED IN COMPILING RECORDS.

Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed, omitting all covenants and warranty.

C. a G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed consideration, he really grants or conveys the property for a valuable consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it.

The street and avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given. When the date of drawing is other than in the current year the stated year is given. When both the dates are in the same year the year follows the second date.

The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:482-10, denote that the property mentioned is in section 2, block 482, lot 10.

It should also be noted in section and block numbers that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only and the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction. Valuations are from the assessment roll of 1914.

T. S. preceding the consideration in a conveyance means that the deed or conveyance has been recorded under the Torren System.

Flats and apartment houses are classified as tenements.

Residences as dwellings.

All Christian names, streets, avenues, states and months are abbreviated when possible, also in some instances names of Banks, Trusts and Insurance Companies.

The number in ( ) preceding the serial number to the right of the date line, at head of this page is the Index number for the Checking Index.

The Star following names of street or avenue in the Bronx Conveyances, Leases and Mortgages indicates that the property recorded is in the annexed district, for which there is no section or block number.

EXPLANATIONS OF TERMS USED AND RULES FOLLOWED IN COMPILING RECORDS.

Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed, omitting all covenants and warranty.

C. a G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed consideration, he really grants or conveys the property for a valuable consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it.

The street and avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given. When the date of drawing is other than in the current year the stated year is given. When both the dates are in the same year the year follows the second date.

The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:482-10, denote that the property mentioned is in section 2, block 482, lot 10.

It should also be noted in section and block numbers that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only and the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction. Valuations are from the assessment roll of 1914.

T. S. preceding the consideration in a conveyance means that the deed or conveyance has been recorded under the Torren System.

Flats and apartment houses are classified as tenements.

Residences as dwellings.

All Christian names, streets, avenues, states and months are abbreviated when possible, also in some instances names of Banks, Trusts and Insurance Companies.

The number in ( ) preceding the serial number to the right of the date line, at head of this page is the Index number for the Checking Index.

The Star following names of street or avenue in the Bronx Conveyances, Leases and Mortgages indicates that the property recorded is in the annexed district, for which there is no section or block number.

EXPLANATIONS OF TERMS USED AND RULES FOLLOWED IN COMPILING RECORDS.

Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed, omitting all covenants and warranty.

C. a G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed consideration, he really grants or conveys the property for a valuable consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it.

The street and avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given. When the date of drawing is other than in the current year the stated year is given. When both the dates are in the same year the year follows the second date.

The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:482-10, denote that the property mentioned is in section 2, block 482, lot 10.

It should also be noted in section and block numbers that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only and the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction. Valuations are from the assessment roll of 1914.

T. S. preceding the consideration in a conveyance means that the deed or conveyance has been recorded under the Torren System.

Flats and apartment houses are classified as tenements.

Residences as dwellings.

All Christian names, streets, avenues, states and months are abbreviated when possible, also in some instances names of Banks, Trusts and Insurance Companies.

The number in ( ) preceding the serial number to the right of the date line, at head of this page is the Index number for the Checking Index.

The Star following names of street or avenue in the Bronx Conveyances, Leases and Mortgages indicates that the property recorded is in the annexed district, for which there is no section or block number.

EXPLANATIONS OF TERMS USED AND RULES FOLLOWED IN COMPILING RECORDS.

Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed, omitting all covenants and warranty.

C. a G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed consideration, he really grants or conveys the property for a valuable consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it.

The street and avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given. When the date of drawing is other than in the current year the stated year is given. When both the dates are in the same year the year follows the second date.

The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:482-10, denote that the property mentioned is in section 2, block 482, lot 10.

It should also be noted in section and block numbers that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only and the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction. Valuations are from the assessment roll of 1914.

T. S. preceding the consideration in a conveyance means that the deed or conveyance has been recorded under the Torren System.

Flats and apartment houses are classified as tenements.

Residences as dwellings.

All Christian names, streets, avenues, states and months are abbreviated when possible, also in some instances names of Banks, Trusts and Insurance Companies.

The number in ( ) preceding the serial number to the right of the date line, at head of this page is the Index number for the Checking Index.

The Star following names of street or avenue in the Bronx Conveyances, Leases and Mortgages indicates that the property recorded is in the annexed district, for which there is no section or block number.

EXPLANATIONS OF TERMS USED AND RULES FOLLOWED IN COMPILING RECORDS.

Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed, omitting all covenants and warranty.

C. a G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed consideration, he really grants or conveys the property for a valuable consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it.

The street and avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given. When the date of drawing is other than in the current year the stated year is given. When both the dates are in the same year the year follows the second date.

The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:482-10, denote that the property mentioned is in section 2, block 482, lot 10.

It should also be noted in section and block numbers that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only and the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction. Valuations are from the assessment roll of 1914.

T. S. preceding the consideration in a conveyance means that the deed or conveyance has been recorded under the Torren System.

Flats and apartment houses are classified as tenements.

Residences as dwellings.

All Christian names, streets, avenues, states and months are abbreviated when possible, also in some instances names of Banks, Trusts and Insurance Companies.

The number in ( ) preceding the serial number to the right of the date line, at head of this page is the Index number for the Checking Index.

The Star following names of street or avenue in the Bronx Conveyances, Leases and Mortgages indicates that the property recorded is in the annexed district, for which there is no section or block number.

EXPLANATIONS OF TERMS USED AND RULES FOLLOWED IN COMPILING RECORDS.

Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed, omitting all covenants and warranty.

C. a G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed consideration, he really grants or conveys the property for a valuable consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it.

The street and avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given. When the date of drawing is other than in the current year the stated year is given. When both the dates are in the same year the year follows the second date.

The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:482-10, denote that the property mentioned is in section 2, block 482, lot 10.

It should also be noted in section and block numbers that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only and the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction. Valuations are from the assessment roll of 1914.

T. S. preceding the consideration in a conveyance means that the deed or conveyance has been recorded under the Torren System.

Flats and apartment houses are classified as tenements.

Residences as dwellings.

All Christian names, streets, avenues, states and months are abbreviated when possible, also in some instances names of Banks, Trusts and Insurance Companies.

The number in ( ) preceding the serial number to the right of the date line, at head of this page is the Index number for the Checking Index.

The Star following names of street or avenue in the Bronx Conveyances, Leases and Mortgages indicates that the property recorded is in the annexed district, for which there is no section or block number.

REAL ESTATE RECORD AND BUILDERS GUIDE.

NEW YORK, JANUARY 2, 1915

REAL ESTATE REVIEW AND PROSPECT

The Extreme Depression of Last Year Will Not Continue—The New Year Will Be One of Preparation For the Return of Good Times

IN our review of the real estate market of last year we stated that 1913 had been a year of almost uninterrupted and unprecedented stagnation in the buying, trading, loaning and building departments of the real estate business. The same statement holds true for the past year. The unprecedented stagnation of 1913 has been repeated in every branch of the real estate business, and the depression has been more acute than it was during the previous year.

It is unnecessary to go into the figures which prove these statements. The truth is notorious to everyone who is acquainted with the conditions under which the real estate business has recently been carried on. Neither is it necessary to enter into a very close analysis of the reasons for this continued depression. Such an analysis has frequently been made in these columns and at the present time practically no new conditions have come into existence to alter the force of what had already been said. Real estate had been passing through a state of acute depression, partly because of general conditions which prevail throughout the world, partly because of business conditions covering the whole of the United States and partly because of the local conditions peculiar to New York and its immediate vicinity.

The depression is more acute in Manhattan and the Bronx than in Brooklyn and Queens. In fact, Brooklyn and Queens have had, in some respects, a fair year. In the real estate department the number of transactions were not indeed any larger than the year before, but building has been somewhat more active in Brooklyn and indeed in Long Island generally.

So far as Manhattan is concerned, however, there are no mitigating circumstances. The number of transactions, both so far as transfers and mortgages were concerned, were smaller than they have been for sixteen years, and the amount of money invested in new buildings is also smaller than any period since the five boroughs were consolidated. Those parts of Manhattan which were particularly depressed during 1912-13 have continued in the same condition throughout 1914. There has been no sign of a revival of activity in the wholesale district or in the financial district, or on the West Side or on Washington Heights.

Most of the new building which has taken place has been concentrated along the line of Fifth avenue and along the line of Park avenue. Some little activity has also been shown in the immediate vicinity of the Grand Central Station, but beyond these few neighborhoods there has been almost no building and since the war broke out real estate of all kinds has been extremely difficult of sale except at prices far below its real value.

The More Important Aspect.

The aspect of the matter in which real estate men are most interested at the present time is not a record of the past but the prospects of the future. Are there any reasons to believe that the depression which has prevailed throughout the last three years will continue during 1915? Are any of the conditions which have caused this depression hitherto becoming of less importance and can any new conditions be expected to come into existence which will help to stimulate real estate activity?

It is even more difficult than usual to answer questions of this kind. The war has made economic predictions of, in every branch of trade, peculiarly hazardous. No one knows as yet how long it will last or what its economic effects will be.

Many economists anticipate that as the consequence of the fearful destruction of property which is now taking place money will be extremely dear for at least ten years and that this scarcity of loanable capital will constitute a grave hindrance to business activity and development of all kinds.

On the other hand, many other reputable economists also believe that all over the world the war has brought with it an amount of rigid economy and an indisposition to spend money on luxuries which is already repairing some of the losses which have been taking place in the actual field of battle.

Effects of the War.

In all probability these economists are right in claiming that the effect of the destruction of property is exaggerated and that if peace is restored some time during the coming year the economical effects of the war will not be as serious as has been anticipated.

Nevertheless, the real estate operators and owners in New York City have no reason to feel complacent over the general outlook. Conditions will remain abnormal throughout the whole of the coming year. Loanable capital for anything but necessary purposes will be very difficult to get. Business will be extremely active in some few branches and extremely stagnant in others. The industries of New York City will neither be unduly stimulated nor unduly depressed, but in neither event will business have a favorable effect upon real estate.

It would be a grave mistake on the part of real estate brokers and operators to anticipate a good year. They have simply got to make the best of the bad condition and keep up the process which they have already begun of preparing for a return of more favorable times.

A New Civic Spirit.

One of the most remarkably hopeful aspects of the past year has been the increasing interest which real estate brokers and owners have been showing in the public aspects of their business. For the first time in the history of New York City they have become an effective influence upon the policy of municipal departments and it is anticipated that during the winter and coming spring they will constitute an equally effective force on behalf of sound business methods in Albany.

During this period of business inactivity and depression they cannot do better than devote their spare time to these public phases of their work. They all know that the existing depression in real estate is probably due more than to any other single cause to the constantly increasing burdens of taxation which have been imposed upon real property. They know also that in spite of this increased burden of taxation the necessary liabilities of the city have not been met and that during the next two years the burden of taxation will be heavier rather than lighter. They must realize also that they themselves are in some measure responsible for their own financial misgovernment. What influence they have had in the past they have used rather to the purpose of securing local improvements than for the purpose of promoting good and economical government.

But at the present time there has been a decided revival of public spirit on the part of real estate owners, brokers and operators and during the coming year the leaders of this revival will be presented with a great opportunity and a grave responsibility. They will have to devise some means of raising increased taxes from sources other than real estate. That is really the most serious problem which now confronts taxpayers of New York City and their agents.

A Year of Preparation.

We hope that our readers will not infer from the foregoing somewhat depressing account of the real estate market and its prospects that we do not believe there will be no increase of activity during the coming year. Of course, it stands to reason that the extreme depression of the last few months will not continue. There will be more real estate bought and sold than in 1914. There will be more money loaned on real estate and there will be more money invested in new buildings, but they must not expect that this increase in activity will get very far or will make any profound change in the worse aspects of the existing situation. The year 1915 will have to be a year of preparing, not a year of gathering fruit. But that the fruit which will eventually be gathered has already begun to be formed is, we believe, undoubtedly the case.

In spite of all that can be said against the conditions that prevail in New York real estate business and building market the fact remains that the city is increasing in population at the rate of 150,000 each year, that 500,000 people have been added to its inhabitants without up to date increasing real estate values at all, except in a few outlying districts, that consequently, a city the size of Buffalo or almost of Cleveland has been created within the area of New York without having any apparent effect on its prosperity and that this process of disappearing growth cannot continue. Some time, within the next two years, its effects must accumulate and when they do accumulate and become effective because of their accumulation New York is likely to have a return of the real estate conditions which prevailed ten years ago.

FINANCE, CREDIT AND BUILDING

How the Three Basic Economic Factors in Construction Have Combined to Hold Back 8.8 Per Cent. of Nation's Plans

THE estimated value of projected building operations throughout the country in 1914 totaled $763,179,925. This was 8.8 per cent. below the total of $839,000,000 for 150 cities in 1913. Fifty per cent. failed to go ahead. The classification of construction by quarters follows:

	1914.	1913.	Change Per. Cent.
January—146 cities	$ 45,999,862	$ 55,514,496	D. 17.1

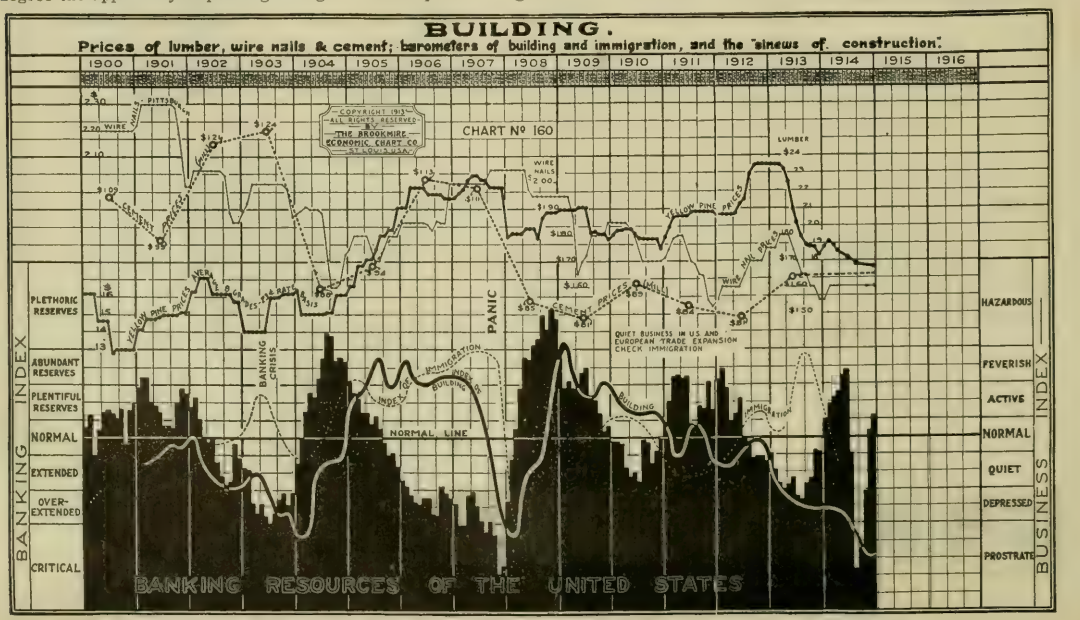
August—152 cities	62,976,175	65,703,443	D. 4.0
September—153 cities	53,356,994	79,730,232	D. 33.0
Total 3d quarter	$199,190,676	$224,220,378	D. 11.1
Total 9 months	632,836,737	693,124,841	D. 8.7
October—152 cities	$ 52,212,491	$ 66,141,492	D. 21.0
November—133 cities	40,130,697	46,519,729	D. 13.7
December—130 cities	38,000,000	33,711,855	D. 11.2
Total 4th quarter	$130,343,188	$146,873,076	D. 11.2
Total 12 months	763,179,925	839,997,917	D. 8.8

It will be noted that during the last quarter the per cent. decrease has gradually shrunken. In October it was 21 per cent. In November the per cent. decreased to 13.7 and in December it had cut as low as 11.2. Glancing at the chart it will be noted that reflecting this gradual improvement in building construction the drop in prices has been less precipitous. The trend while still downward has been checked, indicating that building material commodities throughout the country reflect to some degree the apparently impending change that is about to come over the building material market in the Metropolitan district.



Particular attention is invited to the fact that the line of immigration affecting the labor market was sharply downward during the first quarter when government statistics were available. Since that time it is to be presumed that this line has been much sharper in its decline, owing to the exodus of alien reservists to belligerent countries.

The index in building, however, apparently has reached its low ebb, the lowest record in the country since 1901. American banking resources during the period of most acute depression in August were not quite as low as it was in October of 1907, when there was a financial panic, although it was considerably lower than during the banking crisis of 1903.

The quotations given for lumber are aggregate mill quotations. Those for wire nails are Pittsburgh's, while for Portland cement they are national mill quotations and differ from the Lehigh Valley quotations for New York market, which at tidewater was $1.58 a barrel n 90 cents Lehigh Valley mill. An analysis of the chart gives a clear conception just how acute the crisis has been through which the country has passed. It indicates the gradual decrease in the prices of lumber, intimated in the chart covering the Metropolitan district, appearing on another page, and also shows by comparison the tendency toward ultimate higher prices in basic building lines.

The year closes, according to the chart, which in turn is based upon reliable information obtained from the government, large commercial agencies and the columns of the Record and Guide, with banking resources of the United States safely above normal and bordering upon a state of activity, so far as the business index is concerned, and places the banking index in the classification of plentiful reserves for which the new Federal Reserve Bank Law may be given due credit.

Construction interests in the New York Metropolitan district have practically been the victims of a period of reaction lasting approximately six years. Following the 1907 panic there was a sharp recovery in banking resources. Prices of materials dropped from high altitudes which prevailed two years prior to that time, until money reached its highest level in November, 1908. From that time down to the middle of 1910 there was reaction due probably to a strenuous political campaign followed by two years of moderate business, until the fall back in 1913 to a state of depression. The year 1914 gave promise of developing a lead equal to that of 1908. It had already reached a level in July within 30 per cent. of the 1908 pinnacle when the European war broke out and cast the country into an unprecedented crisis and took away from us much of our cheap labor. Mills began to close and output was restricted. History afforded no guidance and this country was thrown upon its own resources to work its way out of an enigma that never before had confronted it.

While the depression was at its height as indicated by the white lines in the black block, this country for the first time in history was conducting its affairs without the medium of a security exchange and without any basis of valuation for securities, save those for government bonds. And yet the depression did not reach the low levels of the short but excruciating panic of 1907.

Conditions are now ripe for a change for the better. Lake copper electric and pig iron and tin may be expected to be the first contributing factors in the building material market to lead the way to more prosperous conditions.

In basic materials such as brick, steel, cement and lime the demand for building construction will be the potent influence for or against higher prices, but from an analysis of quotations prevailing throughout the country covering the last twenty years and depending upon the regularity of recurrent cycles of prosperity and depressions this country is due for a gradual recovery. Banking interests do not look for any immediate change and are cautioning their clients against expecting boom conditions. The best advice is that there will be a brief recovery between now and July.

LOANS ON REAL ESTATE.

Reserve Board Draws Regulation for National Banks.

The Controller of the Currency at Washington has notified national banks that the Federal Reserve Board has drawn a regulation interpreting the provision in the act governing loans by them on real estate as follows:

"The maximum amount of loans which a national bank may make on real estate under the terms of Section 24 of the Federal Reserve act shall be limited to an amount not in excess of one-third of its time deposits at the time of making of the loans and not in excess of one-third of its average time deposits during the preceding calendar year; provided, however, that if one-third of such time deposits as of the date of making the loan or one-third of the average time deposits for the preceding calendar year shall have amounted to less than one-fourth of the capital and surplus of the bank as of the date of the loan, then, in that event, the bank shall have authority to make loans upon real estate under the terms of the act to the extent of one-fourth of the bank's capital and surplus as of the date of making the loan."

Station Contracts on Sea Beach Line.

The Public Service Commission has approved plans and contract submitted by the New York Municipal Railway Corporation for the construction of the stations on the Sea Beach railroad, as reconstructed for the Dual System of rapid transit. The stations to be built are designated as: Eighth avenue, Fort Hamilton avenue, New Utrecht avenue, Eighteenth avenue, Twentieth avenue, Twenty-second avenue, Kings highway, Avenue U and 86th street. The successful bidder will be required to give a bond of $50,000, to begin work within ten days after the delivery of the contract and to complete the same within six months.

Deals Involving More Than $1,000,000 Enumerated — Comparative Table Shows Transactions, Divided Into Zones, As Compared With 1913

LAST year forty transactions were consummated, involving reported considerations of $1,000,000 or over. Of this number thirty-one were sales and nine leases. Out-of-town capital from Pennsylvania and California figured prominently in several of the large purchases, the buyers including Herbert Dupuy, William E. Flinn, George H. Flinn, William M. Brown and Clarence Payne. The essential details of each transaction will be found below, but it will be noted that the element of trade was conspicuous in a great number of instances.

On the next page a complete resumé has been prepared of all Record and Guide statistics during 1914 and 1913, affecting the reported sales for Manhattan and the Bronx and the Manhattan and Bronx conveyances, recorded in the Registers' offices. These figures are classified according to zones and comprise the totals for each week, month and year, together with the totals for the corresponding periods of 1913. They are so arranged that results for any particular week, in either of the two years, may be obtained, without difficulty.

The compilation of these weekly tables shows a marked decline in Manhattan sales and a slight increase in Bronx private sales, for 1914, as compared with the previous year. In contrast, however, there were several thousand more conveyances recorded in Bronx County, during 1913. This may be explained by the heavy filings after the Morris Park and Moss Estate and other auction sales. The general quiet of the Manhattan real estate market during 1914 is reflected in the comparison of the statistics for the two years.

Below are outlined the transactions involving $1,000,000 or over.

Comparative Movement of Prices for Last Twenty Years—Lumber the Distorting Influence Upon the 1914 Market

IF the rule of averages works out, as it inevitably does, a period of prosperity is due. The rise will not be under way, however, much before September, although it will begin to be felt probably in the spring, by improved sentiment, a freer stock market, followed by a temporary reaction in July. Sixty days later the curve will sharply invert itself.

Just as lumber has been the sole factor that has kept the local composite basic materials market prices up since 1906 so that department of the building material market will be responsible for the stabelizing of prices in the near future. The price of this commodity has been sharply rising, as shown by the chart in the right-hand column, since

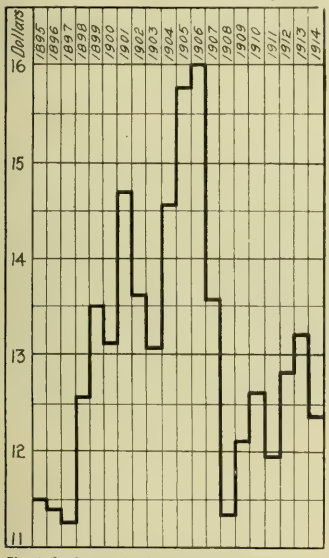

Chart 2—Composite Prices of Building Materials, Including Lumber.

1897, until in 1910, it reached its topmost level of almost $59 for yellow pine flooring, B. heart face, 3 in. per M feet.

Every year since then it has dropped steadily, with a slight exception in 1913, when there was a brief rise, probably due to speculative buying. The drop was resumed last year, and, as more and more Pacific Coast lumber comes into competition via the Panama Canal with Eastern materials, and fireproof construction forces the elimination of more combustible material, the quotations will sink.

How this will affect the local building commodities market may be noted in the single-column table on the left of this page. This chart was plotted from the statistics compiled from the columns of the Record and Guide and other reliable sources. It does not include lumber. On the right side of the page there is a chart plotted from the same statistics, including lumber. The prices necessarily have been taken on standard commodities, such as Hudson River common hard brick per thousand, at wholesale dock, N. Y.; Portland cement, Lehigh district mill base in 500 barrel lots along side dock, N. Y.; steel beams per 100 pounds tidewater, N. Y.; linseed oil per gal.; window glass, American single AA 25 in. black, per sq. ft.; yellow pine B. heart face 3 in. flooring per thousand feet B. M. and Rockland-Rockport lime in 300 pound barrels.

There are incidental metals and materials that have much to do with market prices of staple building materials on the metropolitan market. Manganese ore, copper, tin, spelter and pig iron are the principal ones. Of these copper is the primary factor next to pig iron. Lake copper (electric) is destined to be one of the most potent factors in metals, during the next year, and pig iron, especially of the basic steel making grades, will be in tremendous demand with high prices ruling stiffer as the demand for requirement at home and abroad develops. Recalling that the world is absolutely dependent upon America for its supply of copper and that practically the only iron mines in the world that are being operated are in this hemisphere, these two metals alone will make for higher price trends.

But there are other departments that are not so affected by the unusual conditions resulting from the war abroad. Clay products, lime, plaster, lumber, linseed oil and cement are strictly speaking building commodities which are not conspicuously affected by exports or imports. These are the materials that must depend upon an easy money market for any ascending movement.

Apparently there is a great quantity of construction work demanded but which has not been supplied because money has been too tight to finance these operations. Under normal conditions these projects would have proceeded and the demand would have shifted from one type of building to another, according to location.

Since July, however, about half the normal construction work has moved ahead. In the interim the city has been growing. The re-location of rapid transit lines is forcing upon the city changes of residence, expansion of trade and readjustment of commercial districts. The destiny of Seventh avenue, Varick street, Canal, Lexington avenue, Fourth avenue in Brooklyn, parts of Queens and the Bronx is still unpredictable, but it is quite safe to assume that the nucleus of a demand for new buildings is being laid along these and other avenues through which rapid transit facilities are being provided that will sweep even an unwilling money market before it. Add to this the fifty odd millions of dollars' worth of projected building operations that did not go ahead during the last half of 1914 and the result will be a requirement for modern construction that

BRONX COUNTY OFFICES INADEQUATE

Present Housing Facilities Far Short of Requirements — This Condition Will Be Augmented By Future Growth of Borough

BRONX growth is reflected in the need for additional housing facilities for the various borough and county offices. Although the new county administration began its work less than a year ago, the authorities state that many departments already have outgrown their present quarters. Relative to the unusual growth of the Bronx, Superintendent of Buildings Robert J. Moorehead stated in a recent report: "In recent years the percentage of population increase in Manhattan has been steadily diminishing, while in the other boroughs it has been increasing. The reason is obvious. The bulk of business in the greater city is controlled by Manhattan and is rapidly growing.

"In the lower and central sections of that borough many dwellings are being crowded out to make room for the construction of buildings for business purposes. Many families, therefore, are obliged to seek new quarters in the adjacent boroughs and the Bronx is receiving a goodly share of the homeseekers. Within a period of four years, from April 15, 1910, to July 1, 1914, the population of the Bronx has increased from 430,980 to 641,980, or 49 per cent. This percentage is greater than is shown in any other borough. If the increase is maintained at the same rate the population will exceed 1,000,000 in five years."

This influx of population has caused a corresponding increase in the amount of county business. The Register's, Sheriff's and Coroner's offices are located in the Bergen building, at Arthur and Tremont avenues. Farther east the Borough President and his various departments are found in the big city building in Crotona Park, facing Third avenue.

The new County Court House at 161st street and Third avenue is devoted to county purposes and it houses the courts, including the Supreme, County and the Surrogate; also the Naturalization Bureau, the County Clerk and the District Attorney. The location of this building has proved, in the opinion of a great many, to be very desirable for county government purposes, because it is near the 149th street section and has numerous transit advantages. These include an elevated railroad station at 161st street and a number of surface lines, the West Farms, Bedford Park, Fordham and Woodlawn cars, the 163d street and 161st street crosstown systems, the St. Ann's avenue cars, which terminate at 161st street, and the Melrose avenue line, two blocks distant.

Just west of the Court House there is a convergence of a number of streets, which include Elton avenue, Washington avenue, Brook avenue, 161st, 162d and 163d streets. Three public places have been formed; one at the junction of 163d street, Brook and Elton avenues; another at Elton and Washington avenues and 161st street, and the third at Washington and Brook avenues and 161st street, which is occupied in part by the Municipal Court of the Second Bronx District. The County Court House occupies a fourth triangular plot at the intersection of Third and Brook avenues at 161st street.

The ownership of considerable property at these points is vested in the city, and this fact coupled with the need for additional room for the county offices has raised considerable discussion among Bronx residents. A number are of the opinion that some of this property could be utilized for the erection of additional buildings for county purposes. Others contending that the growth of the city is towards the north, maintain that new offices should be located near the present quarters in the Tremont section. There are others who think that the present capacity at the Court House can be increased by the addition of as many stories as may be necessary to accommodate all of the county offices.

The junction of 161st street and Third avenue has apparently been little affected since the opening of the Court House, and has undergone little change. The locality remains practically as it was before the project was undertaken. East of the Court House there is a row of flats and stores of the usual variety. The proximity of the courts has caused a number of law offices to be opened at various points; the building at 3208 Third avenue has been remodeled for such purposes and is called the Law building. The ground floor is occupied by the Bronx Real Estate Exchange Salesroom.

At the southeast corner of 161st street and St. Ann's avenue the A. Hupfel Sons Brewing Company has added another story to the one-story building which they own. It has been converted into an office building. The rest of this block is under the same ownership and contains the big brewing establishment. Just west is a row of dilapidated taxpayers which are entirely out of harmony with their surroundings. They are directly opposite the beautiful white marble County Court House and are strikingly in contrast to that magnificent structure which is said to have cost in the neighborhood of $1,250,000.

To the west is the convergence of streets which has formed the public places described above. Even here building operations have been few and far between, although several new apartment houses have been built to the west. Large stretches of vacant property, however, are still available for improvement and the development of the entire section is still in its very early stages.

New Ordinances Pending.

The committee of the Board of Aldermen which is engaged in codifying the city ordinances have introduced a number of measures amending or adding to former provisions. Hearings were held on Tuesday at City Hall.

No. 1150. Provides that all curbing for the support of sidewalks hereafter laid shall be of such material, dimensions and construction as shall be prescribed by the Borough President. All other ordinances or parts thereof inconsistent with this are repealed.

No. 1152. The footway of all new sidewalks shall not be less than five feet in width and shall be constructed of granite or bluestone flagging or of artificial stone, in full accordance with or better than called for in standard specifications for this work, which shall be prescribed by the Presidents of the several Boroughs and kept on file in their respective offices.

No. 1156. All telegraph, telephone and electric light poles, wires or appurtenances which, at any time, shall stand for three months disused or abandoned in, over or upon any street or public place, shall be forthwith removed. The persons owning, operating, managing or controlling any poles, wires or appurtenances which may have been so disused or abandoned or which may be dangerous or unsafe shall forthwith take down and remove the same, and upon their failure to do so the president of the borough having jurisdiction shall remove the same forthwith at the expense of such persons.

No. 1181 is a new section added to chapter 5 of part 1. It provides that not more than one hundred square feet of a paved street in a built-up portion of the city shall be occupied by building material and allowed to remain more than twelve hours without a permit.

Queens is to get an appropriation of one million dollars from the Board of Estimate for three barge canal terminals.

BENEVOLENT FINANCIAL POLICY

Give Borrowers Time, and Don't Ask Unreasonable Interest Rates. A New Year Admonition from the Advisory Council

ALMOST significant position has been taken by the Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests with reference to interest rates upon mortgages. Owing to pressed business conditions generally, as well as to the reaction resulting from the destruction of economic forces in the European war, the financial stringency in the city has been marked. As a consequence, increased rates of interest for loans have been and are being asked by financial institutions and individuals in commercial and industrial activities.

It was apprehended that this tendency to advance rates of interest would be reflected in the real estate market. The Advisory Council has realized since last summer that if this tendency to become higher interest rates were to become general among lenders upon real estate throughout the city, many real estate owners and brokers would be confronted by grave difficulty in financing their real estate operations.

It has been the aim of the Advisory Council to advocate, advise, and suggest to all financial institutions and individual lenders of the city, that, in its opinion, it would not be expedient to inaugurate any policy at the present time which would require higher interest rates. Not only did the members of the council recommend such action to others, but they have endeavored to adopt such a course themselves, in all transactions relating to renewals of mortgages and interest on loans.

This attitude on the part of the council upon an exceedingly delicate fiscal question constitutes a striking contrast with the action of lenders in other fields of business. For example, interest rates on mortgages have, at the present time, averaged 4/2—5 per cent, whereas the city is required to pay 6 per cent. on its one hundred million-dollar loan. Even then, the city would have been unable to secure this loan except for the fact that it adopted a new fiscal policy.

There is no doubt whatsoever that the banking syndicate which made this loan to the city, did so at a lower interest rate than its constituent members could have secured upon other investments or bonds throughout the country. Railroad corporations particularly offered high premiums to obtain finances to maintain themselves in proper condition. Consequently, the action of the Advisory Council in endeavoring to prevent an increase of interest rates on mortgages, indicates a generous spirit of co-operation and mutual interest in the real estate situation in the city, by its members.

It is sincerely hoped that the position of the council in this respect will have an ameliatory effect, particularly in cautioning everyone against taking unfair advantage of a stringent condition which is, however, daily becoming less alarming. Recognizing the fact that the financial condition in real estate is not as rigid nor as rigorous as it was a few months ago, the council has deemed it wise to give out for publication the following resolution adopted some time ago:

"Resolved: That in view of the present unsettled financial condition, we are of the opinion that, in relation to first mortgages on real estate in this city, it is a good business policy to refrain from demanding an unreasonable rate of interest as a condition for extension of payment.

"We have learned with satisfaction that holders of mortgages, both corporate and individual, have, in many instances, met the situation on the above lines and have been willing to give borrowers time to make partial payment on account of principal, withholding the institution of foreclosure procedings when interest and taxes have been fully paid.

"The council is of the opinion that the policy of requiring a small annual payment in reduction of the principal of mortgages, would be of great advantage both to the owner and the mortgagee, and that such annual payments would tend to discourage unwise speculation in real estate and be likely to add to its desirability as a permanent investment, and, at the same time, it would maintain the security of mortgages thereon."

The resolution is signed by William J. Amend, Adolph Bloch, Edward C. Blum, Clarence H. Kelsey, Willard V. King, G. Howland Leavitt, Laurence M. D. McGuire, Alfred E. Marling, Albert G. Milbank, Cyrus C. Miller, Thomas M. Mulry, Charles A. Peabody, Frederic B. Pratt, William S. Van Clief.

BRONX APARTMENTS.

The Borough Built 41 Per Cent. of All the City's Total.

APARTMENT house construction is a valuable asset to the Borough of the Bronx, and many imposing buildings have been erected in the borough during the past few years. A table of apartment houses which were planned during the year 1913 in the Boroughs of Manhattan, Brooklyn and the Bronx follows and will be of interest:

APARTMENT HOUSES—PLANS FILED IN 1913.

Borough.	No.	Est. Cost.	Average per Bldg.	No. of Aparts.
Bronx.....	330	$14,956,851	$ 45,396	7371
Brooklyn....	553	12,349,500	22,332	5963
Manhattan..	158	22,267,200	140,932	5704

This table includes the number of living apartments provided and the showing of the Bronx is exceptional in that 7,371 new apartments were planned therein, as compared with 5,963 in Brooklyn and 5,704 in Manhattan.

During the past five years 58,733 living apartments which are capable of housing 265,000 persons have been provided in new apartment houses erected in the Bronx, which is a remarkable record and is proof positive that builders and investors are appreciative of the great possibilities of our borough and are alive to its needs and demands.

A table of living apartments in apartment houses which were planned in the entire city during the year 1909 to 1913, inclusive, is herewith submitted:

It may appear somewhat of a surprise to learn that the Bronx contributed 41 per cent. of the new living apartments in apartment houses during the period cited as compared with 30 per cent. by Manhattan, 23 per cent. by Brooklyn and 6 per cent. by Queens.

Thus the Borough of the Bronx is able to offer exceptional inducements to the homeseekers and at the present time, can accommodate 148,620 families or 658,790 persons in apartment houses and in one and two-family dwellings as is indicated in the following table:

LIVING APARTMENTS AVAILABLE IN THE BRONX.

	No. of Aparts.	No. of Persons Accommodated.
In apartment houses.....	113,948	512,766
In 1 and 2-family dwellings	34,672	156,024

New Summer Community.

An East Orange and Newark summer community is to be established at Shorelands, Monmouth Beach, New Jersey next summer. Shorelands is so favorably situated with the ocean on one side and the Shrewsbury River on the other that the idea was suggested by Mr. Geo. W. Wardell of East Orange to his friends there and in Newark. To date invitations to join the summer colony have been accepted and purchases of ground have been made by Mr. Frederick J. Rogers, Mr. George W. Wardell, Mr. Frederick S. Harris, Mr. Samuel G. Cooper, Mr. William D. Gibby and Mr. William D. Grier.

One of the chief factors in the growth of a suburb is the social life and Shorelands at Monmouth Beach offers so many attractions that it was finally selected as an ideal place to spend a summer, on account of the rapid and pleasant transit service from New York City to Shorelands. The Sandy Hook boat route is one of the most delightful rides around New York and the prospect of a pleasant trip morning and evening appealed to these Orange and Newark people.

It is planned to invite others to join this summer community so that as far as possible co-operative building which has proved so economical will be the plan pursued.

May it be a Happy New Year, indeed.

"Patience is bitter, but its fruit is sweet."

The city is losing a thousand dollars a day on the new court house site, according to the Bureau of City Inquiry. But think of what the city is saving by not going on with the building for the present.

The answer of the Health Department to the charge that it is trying to do too much, at too great a cost to the city, is that the law demands this varied service. Inasmuch as the medical propaganda at Albany is largely responsible for loading the statute books with health laws, is it surprising that the taxpaying public is not satisfied with the answer?

Chairman McCall of the Public Service Commission says 1915 should see a real estate revival, because the influence of rapid transit development must have a wholesome effect upon the real estate of the city. Two important lines will be temporarily operated this year and before the close of 1917 he expects to see all construction work on the dual system of rapid transit, except possibly the river tunnels, completed and ready for permanent operation.

Certain elements in the real estate market are quite satisfactory, particularly to owners. Out of a hundred apartments in the two multifamily houses which the Messrs. Paterno recently completed on Broadway between 78th and 79th streets, all but six have been rented. The apartments comprise five, six and seven rooms, and they rent for sixteen to twenty-two hundred dollars. The inference is that there is a marked demand for the smaller apartments in first class neighborhoods by families hitherto occupying either larger apartments or private dwellings.

Borough Administration or City Administration.

The coming session of the Legislature will be a most interesting one for the property owners of New York City. A number of extremely important matters affecting property interests directly or indirectly will be brought up for legislative decision. Of these the most immediately important is the legislation which is proposed to cure the evils of excessive and discordant regulation. This matter has now been under investigation for a long time. The real estate interests of the city not only have a real and a crying grievance but they are united upon a remedy. Sixty representative real estate organizations have recently formed in recommending to the State Factory Investigating Commission a method of consolidating the work of the building regulation. They propose that the work of the Bureau of Fire Prevention of the Fire Department, the Tenement House Department, the Police Department, in relation to boilers, the Health Department in respect to the structure of particular factories and the similar work performed by the Department of Water, Public Works and State Department of Labor shall all be turned over to the Building Department. They propose also that the present organization of the Building Department shall be continued, and that these powers shall be vested in commissioners appointed by the Borough Presidents. These several local superintendents are to be organized into a Board of Standards with power to make, amend and repeal building rules and regulations. Finally, the Board of Examiners is to be continued and its functions increased. The board to pass upon appeals from the orders issued by the several building bureaus.

The general plan of legislation sketched in the preceding paragraph would constitute an effective simplification of regulation and an enormous improvement upon it. It remains to be seen whether the Factory Investigation Commission will recommend the plan to the Legislature.

The difficulty will be in pursuading the commission to recommend the grant of such enormous powers to an official appointed by the Borough Presidents, and even if the commission does recommend it the Legislature will not acquiesce without the exercise of a great deal of pressure. It would be afraid of a lax administration of the laws by an official which was responsible only to local public opinion. The Borough President is elected for the purpose of satisfying the special interests of his own part of the city. Many of the building regulations are opposed by local interests and have been passed despite their opposition in response to a more general public sentiment. The representatives of this more general public sentiment will allege that these purely local officials could not be depended upon to enforce laws which run counter to local interests and opinion. They can put up a very strong argument, because on the whole the administrative standards of borough officials have not up to date been extremely high. If this opposition is to be overcome the real estate interests will have to present very strong reasons in favor of a system of borough administration, and they will have to back their reasons up with the exercise of a great deal of pressure upon the Legislature. The whole matter needs to be placed in the hands of a strong committee, and whenever necessary the committee should be able to summon to its assistance a numerous delegation of property owners from every borough in the city.

The Taxation Crisis.

Next to the consolidation of the building inspection service the most urgent need of legislation for New York City is for a change in the methods of taxation. Property owners should realize that in one way or another the city must obtain a considerable increase of income. Under its contract with the bankers it will have to cease borrowing for certain purposes, or if it borrows the loans will have to be repaid in a shorter time. In any event a great many million dollars will have to be found for the service of the debt, and every sound economist will agree that this money ought to be raised and spent. But the question is, where is it to come from? The increased taxation of real estate would be sheer confiscation. It would be taking away the property of a comparatively small class which has already suffered severely from the same cause. Ordinarily some portion of such an increase in taxation could be distributed among the occupiers of real property in the form of increased rents, but at present no such redistribution is possible. Any considerable increase in real estate taxation would be disastrous to weak owners. They would lose their equity.

The alternative is to tap some other sources of taxation. New York City must make provision to raise eventually as much as $10,000,000 a year from miscellaneous taxes. These taxes will have to fall upon business rather than upon property, and the only question is: what forms of business shall be selected for the purpose? Neither is it hard to give a general answer to this question. It would be fatal to tax kinds of business which might be driven out of New York by the burdens imposed upon them. Any business which is taxed must be one which is anchored to New York and which cannot be carried on anywhere else. Under ordinary conditions the brokerage business would comply to this condition, but unfortunately the State has already stepped in and taken away from the city this properly local source of revenue.

Another business which cannot escape taxation is the great metropolitan one of providing amusement for the inhabitants of the city, and in our opinion it is in this direction that the city should turn for some of its increased revenue. Any proposal of this kind will excite furious opposition from the owners and managers of theaters, but they will soon get over it because they will be able eventually to make the consumer pay the tax. Neither is there any reason why theater managers deserve tender treatment at the hands of the New York public. They do not play fair with their own customers. Ostensibly they charge $2 each for the best seats in the house; but unless the production is wholly unsuccessful, no customer can ever buy a good seat for $2. The front rows are all reserved for agents and speculators who charge the customer anything they can get and divide the profits with the managers. There are entertainments now being offered in the city at which seats in the front rows cost from $5 to $3, according to the desirability of the location. Managers who do not protect their public deserve no consideration from their public. There is no reason why the city should not get its share of these monopoly profits. It ought to get 25 cents out of the price of every theater ticket sold and twenty per cent. of the selling price of admissions to the movies.

What Is a Normal Amount of Building?

Some parts of the city have been so accustomed to having an inordinate amount of construction to do that a normal amount seems small in comparison. Just what would be a normal amount in Manhattan it would be difficult to determine. A borough that planned over $120,000,000 worth of new buildings in 1905 and also in 1909, and $116,000,000 worth in 1912, only two years ago, will scarcely be able to reconcile itself to the proposition that the normal level of activity in Manhattan can be represented by an appropriation of less than $90,000,000. There needs to be taken into account when estimating the amount of employment for mechanics, and when making comparisons with previous years, the fact that a new borough has come into the city building field and has become a large producer of construction work. The effect of this has been in some degree to shift a large amount of employment from one borough to another.

If to the Manhattan figures of estimated cost of new buildings planned figures should be added that would represent the cost of the factories of the type that have been erected in Long Island City, and which are no longer being erected in Manhattan, and if we should also add the cost of the apartments that are now being erected in Brooklyn and the Bronx of the type no longer constructed in Manhattan, there would result a sum to represent what some authorities consider a normal amount of construction. In other words, it must be remembered that building operations cannot be confined within geographical bounds, and that much of the sort of construction that once figured in the Manhattan records are now credited to other boroughs.

Moreover, the average construction unit being large, a year does not suffice for the completion of an operation; and the second year's work on the building employs a larger number of workmen than the first; and in the case of exceptionally large contracts the third year is also prolific of good employment for mechanics. Consequently, the amount of activity in any one year is not to be estimated from the value of the buildings projected in that year, but rather the plans of previous years must be taken into account.

With only $70,000,000 appropriated during the year 1913 for new buildings in Manhattan, but with $31,000,000 in Brooklyn, $20,000,000 in the Bronx and $17,000,000 in Queens, there was enough uncompleted work to add to this year's offerings so as to provide on the whole a fair amount of work for the union workmen in most of the building trades of Greater New York, according to official report. Exceptions must be made for a very few trades. They had to go a distance to find their job in many cases, but somewhere within reach for most of them there was work to do all through the season, or at least until cold weather stopped the operation. Therefore, for building mechanics the season was not so ill-starred as it seemed, but the present winter finds more mechanics out of work than usual.

Don't Be Alarmed About New York.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

I have read with some amazement Mr. William E. Harmon's diagnosis of the ills from which he believes our municipality, with special reference to its market for real property, is suffering.

He is able to perceive some symptoms that are not apparent to me, and he seems to me to have overlooked the most prominent, I might say, the only serious symptom of the municipal complaint.

I agree with him that it was not a good thing away back in 1906, nor a prudent thing, to have widened the range of lawful investments for life insurance companies and savings banks. Not because it restricted the amount of money available for investment in mortgage loans, but because the lending institutions have lost more by it than it was supposed they should have gained.

As to the Federal Banking Act operating adversely to the interests of our realty market, that has still to be demonstrated. I have an idea that it is going to be of great benefit to it. World-wide demand was steadily raising the price of money, and under the operation of our old patchwork banking and currency laws the rates of interest were rising to insupportable levels. Valuations for land that had been based upon a five per cent. net income will not hold when the income is cut below that figure.

What that Federal Banking Act might have done toward lessening the stringency in our money markets and to bring the rate of interest on mortgage loans to an average of less than five per cent., can only be surmised, for, since the enactment of that law a conflagration has broken out in Europe that is so disastrous in all its consequences upon all the markets of all the world, that old bases of calculation are destroyed.

This European war is one of the causes of the disturbed condition "in our midst," and this, I believe, escaped the attention of Mr. Harmon. He did find, however, that New York is afflicted with municipal extravagance. We found that "Chicago, with one-half of New York's population, spends only about one-sixth as much tax money." This is stated without qualification, and the implication is that New York is spending three times as much as Chicago has to pay for the same things. This is manifestly absurd. I think I know how Mr. Harmon fell into this error, but I will not trouble you with it now.

Then Mr. Harmon finds that we are short on civic spirit, and again that we are insular; that we are losing business, and are burdened with Quixotic laws, such as the police pension and tenement house laws. And he thinks we ought to reform along these lines, but doubts if we have the recuperative power. Manifestly, he thinks our case is hopeless, and that we have gone into a permanent decline—not actually, but by comparison with other cities—such as Cleveland and Los Angeles—where, inferentially they have no tenement house or police pension laws, or municipal extravagance, or lack of civic spirit, or of money for mortgage loans.

Now, to my mind, Mr. Harmon overlooked the chief cause of our present depressed real property market. It is our overbuilt condition, resulting from the tremendous boom in land values and in building operations, from which we did not really begin to react until about three years ago. Until then mortgage money was superabundant, and every new venture in building or in suburban exploitation found ready backing. Tenants had only to express a desire to a builder to move into a brand new building or little nearer the social centers, but the builder and the financier immediately responded to his desires.

But then the owners of the deserted buildings, being thus deprived of their tenants and their rental incomes, found it difficult to pay the interest on the mortgages that the financiers had held all along on these now empty buildings, and so they surrendered them to the financiers. And now the financiers began to take notice. Two mortgages are better than one when both are producing the interest with punctuality, but they are worse than one when only one is producing. So the financiers stopped financing surplus building operations, which is why business is dull in real estate and building in and around New York.

If in the years of liquidation following the boom New York lost any industries it was because rents had been jacked up so high the enterprises could not stand them. But as a result of over two years of liquidation rents are down to a normal level in nearly every section of the city. Indeed, they are lower than before within ten years—so low, in fact, as to invite the attention of people intending to newly establish themselves. Only land values have not been fully adjusted to the new order of things. There are still very many owners of property in New York, chiefly to be found among the very wealthy, who are unable to appreciate the changed condition of things and who are still holding for boom prices. They are sowing the seed of false hopes and will reap only a harvest of regrets.

But for this awful war I firmly believe our real property market would have touched bottom last summer and the tide would have turned to a long flood. As it is, New York is to-day quite as able to compete with all the other centers of industry in all the world, in the doing of the world's work as she ever was. With an incomparable natural location and equipment our Empire City has provided in unequaled excellence and completeness every facility for the pursuit of every occupation under the sun. And when the change for the better in the affairs of the world comes, as come it will, New York will present to the ambitious, the capable and the industrious of all lands, as she has always done in the past, the best opportunity for advancement to be found anywhere. Don't let anybody be alarmed about the future of New York. She surfeited a little too long on rich food and had a fit of indigestion, but she is convalescent now and growing stronger every day.

What is Ahead of Us?

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

What has the year 1915 in store for real estate? Will the tendency in activity be upwards or the reverse?

It is a recognized fact that since last July we have witnessed a growing depression in real estate, which reached low-water mark in the lattet part of November. During that dark period transactions were few in both mortgages and sales. Not alone was there an absence of activity, but complete stagnation had set in. There were many unfavorable causes which led to this condition, first and foremost being the war scare with its many attendant incidents.

Investors are now awaiting the millenium, believing that with the fast-growing, and ever-increasing unfavorable conditions, many opportunities would be found to reap enormous advantages. The general stability of the country, the confidence of the many in our ability to meet successfully the emergency of the moment, all alike inspired a faith that swung the pendulum the other way.

For a long time we oscillated between the hopes and apprehensions. The return of confidence was emphasized by the re-opening of the Stock Exchange, followed by increased activity among large mortgage investors, banks and trust companies, and increased buoyancy in both sales and mortgages.

Building operations in both Manhattan and Bronx, having been at low level for many months, rents received a stimulating impetus, enhancing the value of real estate.

For the last six months there has been a general withdrawal for mortgage investments, so that now, on the dawn of a coming prosperity, a large sum will be available to give life, strength and tone to an otherwise demoralized situation.

This tendency to a general improvement is clearly illustrated in the salesroom, where the formal announcement of "bid in by plaintiff" has been varied by outside bids. Recently a large Fifth avenue corner was sold on a judgment of $235,000, an amount in excess of the incumbrances, netting the defendant a comfortable return. In an auction sale of 88 suburban lots $120,707 was readily realized from buyers ready and anxious. The sale of the Hotel Gotham for $3,500,000 cash shows the confidence of the outside buyer. A number of large apartment houses have recently been sold on a cash basis.

The sales mortgages for 1914 in Greater New York were but $150,000,000 less than 1913, and aggregated upwards of $1,310,000,000.

The decline of 1914 was but 10 per cent. All these figures indicate a return to normal condition.

The future prospects for 1915 are encouraging, but in order to make the effect lasting, real estate interests must be alert, and keep on guard to ward off the continuous assaults directed against it. Municipal extravagance must be checked, political favorites dispensed with, and the rate of wages fixed on a par with that paid by the ordinary business man. Many departments should be consolidated under one general head, with a view of general unanimity of action. The vast army of inspectors, whose sole duty seems to be to harass property owners, with duplicate orders, should be reduced to meet legitimate needs. Excessive legislation directed against building interests should be minimized, and broader latitude given, within the limits of peace and health regulations.

Legislation should be initiated seeking other sources of taxation, in addition to real estate.

REAL ESTATE NEWS OF THE WEEK

Brokerage Sales, Auctions, Foreclosure Suits Together With Other Current Realty Items

PLATE GLASS SITUATION.

Disregard of Commission Rates Has Had Wide-Reaching Effect.

Conditions in Greater New York have recently suffered another upheaval, which was brought about by certain members of the Plate Glass Underwriters Association entirely disregarding the commission rules of that organization.

It developed upon investigation that 153 brokers had been granted commission allowances in excess of the established rate of 25 per cent. Repeated efforts were made to adjust the matter, but without success, and on October 28 the association disbanded. This was immediately followed by the organization of a new body, known as The Plate Glass Insurance Alliance of America. The companies forming this alliance are the following: Aetna Accident & Liability Company, Fidelity and Casualty Company of New York, Fidelity and Deposit Company, Globe Indemnity Company, London & Lancashire Guaranty & Accident Company, Maryland Casualty Company, New Amsterdam Casualty Company, New Jersey Fidelity & Plate Glass Insurance Company, Ocean Accident & Guarantee Corporation, Royal Indemnity Company, U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Company.

An entirely new rating plan has been adopted, which is consistent with the desire to establish a sensible rating system for plate glass insurance. In a report made by the Insurance Department following an examination of the defunct association, the inadequacy of the former rating plan was criticised, and the new Alliance was organized with the intention of meeting these criticisms. As a result classifications have been established and a merit rating system has been initiated. The Alliance has agreed upon a flat commission rate to brokers, and it is believed that the eleven companies now comprising it will form the nucleus of a larger organization.

Notwithstanding the demoralized conditions in New York, the rate situation throughout the country has not yet been materially affected. The same companies that are indulging locally in cut-rate practices of the very worst kind are standing together in the maintenance of rates in what is known as "Bureau territory," which is under the jurisdiction of the Plate Glass Service and Information Bureau. All the companies seem to realize the tremendous loss that follows in the wake of a cut-rate war, and there is a disposition to confine it to a limited territory. We are not without hope, indeed, that the situation will soon readjust itself in Greater New York, and that the companies as a whole will be found lined up in an endeavor to maintain proper practices for their common benefit.

Peter Doelger Estate.

Peter Doelger, the brewer, who died on December 15, 1912, left a total estate of $7,856,123, with a net value of $7,056,186. According to the report of the Transfer Tax appraisers filed on Tuesday the residuary estate, comprising the bulk of the holdings, is to be held in trust during the life of Mrs. Mary Doelger, widow. At her death the sons will receive their interests in the trust outright, and the shares of the daughters will be held in trust for them, they receiving the incomes and their issue receiving the principal at their deaths.

The total value of the residuary trust is fixed at $6,015,712. The value of each of the eight trusts is $751,964. Realty owned by Mr. Doelger is valued at $5-395,022; cash and bank deposits, $456,-399; personalty, claims and mortgages, $1,279,767; stocks and bonds, $724,934. There were deductions for expenses of administration of $200,000. Debts amounted to $439,123 and commissions to $157,502. The realty includes 116 parcels in Manhattan, 24 parcels in Brooklyn, 10 in Queens, 2 lots in Nassau county and 2 lots in Suffolk county. Details of the specific real estate holdings in Manhatan and the Bronx, giving the location and the estimated market value will be found elsewhere in the Record and Guide under Real Estate Appraisals.

NO STAMPS ON LICENSES.

Superintendent Hasbrouck Reverses Previous Ruling.

State Superintendent of Insurance Frank Hasbrouck has made a ruling upon the application of the emergency revenue or stamp tax law to certificates issued by the Insurance Department which affects many thousands of agents and brokers transacting the business of insurance in this State and all insurance corporations.

By a previous ruling, based upon an opinion of the United States Commissioner of Internal Revenue, which has since been changed, all insurance agents and brokers in the State were notified by the Superintendent of Insurance that an uncanceled revenue stamp of the denomination of ten cents must accompany every application for a certificate of authority required by the insurance law, so that such stamp might be affixed to the certificate when issued. These instructions are now withdrawn, under a new ruling by the U. S. Commissioners, that certificates are not subject to the tax.

A Handy Calendar Pad.

The old New Year spirit survives and pleasant greetings come and go on the phone and through the mail from many an office and shop in the real estate and building field.

A calendar pad for the year 1915, which accomplishes the work of a complete card index and preserves old memoranda, is being sent as a New Year gift by the Charles F. Noyes Company, of 92 William street, to the friends and clients of the firm. Wall calendars, inkwells and other articles of office utility are also going around to prove that business is not entirely business but that a little fellow feeling always manages to get in to salt or sweeten.

How Fast the Years Roll 'Round.

The nineteenth annual dinner of the Real Estate Board of New York will be held at the Waldorf-Astoria, Saturday evening, February 6. Tickets, $5 each. These annual dinners have always been exceptionally fine occasions. Coming on a Saturday night, the most care-free night of the week, they can be enjoyed to the full. This year Elisha Sniffin, Donald W. Brown, Joseph P. Day, Edward L. King and Robert T. McGusty are the dinner committee.

United Owners' Ball.

On Thursday, January 7, the annual entertainment and ball of the United Real Estate Owners' Association will be held at Terrace Garden in East 58th street, near Lexington avenue. The occasion promises to be of importance, not only as a social affair, but as affording the only opportunity during the year when the members of all the various "Locals" can meet each other for conversational exchange of views.

LAW DEPARTMENT

Brokers' Commissions.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

Will you state in your columns what commission a broker is entitled to in the matter of a lease for two years, with an option for five years more? In the absence of any agreement to the contrary, is he entitled to a commission on the option, if exercised, and if so, when would the commissions be payable and how would they be divided?

BROKER.

Answer: The new regulations of the Real Estate Board of the City of New York, as found in the Manual for 1915, provide, in reference to leases, that "if the term be for a period of over one year and less than three, a commission shall be charged on the average yearly rental of two and one-half per cent., but the amount shall not be less than one per cent. on the gross rental." Further, the regulations provide that "should there be a clause in the lease for a term under twenty years, giving the lessee the option of a further term, and should he avail himself of such option, the owner shall pay the broker the commission due on the rent to be paid during such extension." The stated commission on leases for three years and over is one per cent. on the gross rental. The prevailing practice in regard to renewals (see Manual for 1914) has been to make the commissions to be paid the subject of special agreement between the parties.

Entitled to Their Commission.

A jury in the Supreme Court, Part XIV, last week, before Mr. Justice Cohalan, awarded L. Tanenbaum, Strauss & Co., Inc., over three thousand dollars' commissions in an action instituted by them against the Wilson estate. This case presented an interesting feature from a real estate brokerage standpoint. The evidence adduced by the plaintiff showed that in October, 1912, G. Searing Wilson, representing the estate, authorized L. Tanenbaum, Strauss & Co., as brokers, to lease a portion of the Wilson Building, situated at Broadway and 33d street. The latter informed Mr. Wilson that the Exchange Buffet Corporation, offered fifteen thousand dollars per annum for a twenty-one year term.

The brokers continued to negotiate until the early part of February, when they were informed that the lease had been closed with the Exchange Buffet Corporation through other brokers substantially on the terms originally offered. The defendants' proof showed that the brokers closing the transaction had been retained in January, 1913, and had received a commission of one-half of one per cent. Mr. Justice Cohalen submitted to the jury, for its determination, the question whether they believed L. Tanenbaum, Strauss & Co. to be the procuring cause of the lease, further stating that if they were the procuring cause even though another broker received a commission, and ven though they were not present when the lease was finally concluded, that they were nevertheless entitled to their commissions. The jury rendered a verdict as above stated. The attorneys for the plaintiff were Strouse & Strauss, with Henry W. Unger, of counsel. The attorneys for the defendants were Everett, Clarke & Benedict.

Developing the South Shore.

Since the southern half of Nassau County, Long Island, has been undergoing development into a suburban home area of New York City it has presented topographical features to the investing public, peculiarly its own level and absorbent country and natural waterways about a mile apart that are arms to Hempstead Bay, the latter of which divides the mainland from the actual ocean coast line.

The combination of sand and loam that comprises the land of the south shore makes excavating for home foundation purposes easy and eliminates the considerable comparative expense attendant upon excavating in territory where rock abounds or where the strata is harder and more composite.

Heavy rains pass into southern Long Island soil rapidly and the Borough of Brooklyn has found copious water beds beneath it from which it draws the larger part of its water supply. The villages throughout the southern part of Nassau County obtain their water supply from the same source and consequently there is no water problem for a steadily augmenting suburban population. When the city of New York completes its Catskill water supply system, Brooklyn will draw but a nominal volume of water from Long Island. Its ponds and reservoirs there will be kept for emergency uses.

Because of the adjacency of southern Nassau County to Brooklyn and a plethora of rapidly growing villages there is very little acreage remaining undeveloped within its area. The Randalls have reclaimed and improved all of the shore front acreage at Freeport, and operators and builders and the general expansion of villages have caused the upbuilding of all the large areas easily accessible to railroad and trolley west of Rockville Centre in Nassau County.

Comprising seven hundred acres, the shore front of Baldwin is now in process of substantial development and improvement. It is among the last of the numerous large tracts of land that abounded on the south shore of Nassau County a decade ago; and the fact demonstrates the rapidity with which the southern half of the county has been acquired for suburban home purposes. Because of its triple waterway system that connects with the bay, the shore front area of Baldwin is known as Baldwin Harbor. Its growth is propagated by the influx of New York business men and their families, and their coming has necessitated the installation of municipal improvements.

—Great inequality now exists in the size of the present aldermanic districts. In 1913 in the smallest district (32nd, Bronx) the vote was 2,984; in the largest (34th, Bronx) the vote was 22,766. In Manhattan Borough about one-half of the voters elected nearly two-thirds of the aldermen. In Brooklyn eight districts of twenty-four cast about half the full vote, that is to say, half of the voters elected two-thirds of the aldermen. That was the average ratio throughout the city in 1913.

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

Closing days of 1914 brought another $1,000,000 deal and interest in tenement properties in various sections of the city. A Queens County transaction involved about $850,000, and affected a large undeveloped tract that has been in litigation for many years. When it is considered that the week was handicapped by its position between two of the most important holidays of the year, the business may be regarded as encouraging. There were few large transactions; the tendency being rather for the acquisition of smaller properties.

With the close of the year also came the general feeling that real estate has been through its worst period and that the new year will bring with it a continued improvement in the mortgage market with its coincident beneficial influences on sales by private treaty.

The total number of sales reported and not recorded in Manhattan this week was 19 as against 12 last week and 15 a year ago.

The number of sales south of 59th street was 9, as compared with 2 last week and 6 a year ago.

The sales north of 59th street aggregated 10, as compared with 10 last week and 9 a year ago.

The total number of conveyances in Manhattan was 95, as against 92 last week, 12 having stated considerations totaling $241,655. Mortgages recorded this week number 51, involving $138,020 as against 49 last week, totaling $738,020.

From the Bronx 6 sales at private contract were recorded, as against 8 last week and 14 a year ago.

The amount involved in Manhattan and Bronx auction sales this week was $585,958, compared with $1,596,525 last week, making a total for the year of $43,473,645. The figures for the corresponding week last year were $2,097,751 and the total from Jan. 1, 1913, to Jan. 1, 1914, was $49,405,882.

$850,000 Rockaway Coast Deal.

F. Newman bought the Remington Vernam estate property of the New York City Waterfront Company, at a reported price of $850,000. The tract includes all the vacant land between the Arverne and Edgemere lines, the Atlantic Ocean and the Rockaway Boulevard. The frontage along the ocean is about 3,700 feet and the depth about 800 feet. In extent it is as large as Arverne and larger than Edgemere. About 100 acres of the tract was later re-sold to the S. & L. Construction Company. L. Schumacher and Julius Levy. This land, fronting about 1,000 feet along the Rockaway coast, will be developed into building lots. The Vernam estate has an interesting history. For twenty-four years prior to 1913 the property was in litigation, various parts of it having been claimed by owners whose interests were disputed. Parts of the property were transferred from time to time, but one year ago the courts set aside many of these transfers and gave the land back to the Vernam heirs.

$1,250,000 Exchange.

Julian T. Davies of the law firm of Davies, Auerbach & Cornell bought through Tucker, Speyers & Company, from the E. A. L. Construction Company, Edgar A. Levy, president, the recently-completed twelve-story elevator apartment house at 150 East 72d street, southeast corner of Lexington avenue, on plot 104.4x80. In part payment Mr. Davies gave the Bancroft Building, a ten-story mercantile structure at 3-7 West 29th street, on plot 74.6x98.9. The transaction involved approximately $1,250,000.

Long Island City Building.

John Katzman purchased from the Rickert-Finlay Realty Company, twenty-five lots with a frontage of 500 feet on Ditmars and Van Alst avenues and McClellan place, Astoria, the remainder of the block on which he is building an apartment house accommodating 84 families. Plans are being prepared by Edward Hahn for a similar operation on the plot just acquired. The estimated cost of the two buildings is about $300,000.

Harlem-Suburban Exchange.

Derschuch & Co. sold to the Vortex Company, Inc., C. J. Stein, president, to J. A. Mucke, the seven-story elevator apartment house on plot 52x100, at 531 and 533 West 124th street. The same brokers resold the property, the last purchaser giving in part payment eight two-family dwellings and sixty lots, at Elmsford, N. Y., together with 112 lots at Ardsley Heights, Westchester county, N. Y. The transaction involved about $90,000.

Manhattan—South of 59th St.

NEW CHAMBERS ST.—D. H. Jackson Co. bought from Sadie Davis, 81 New Chambers st, through to 93 James St, a 6-sty tenement, on plot 33.7x85.7x25.6x66, with stores in both streets.

To Real Estate Owners

The accompanying letter explains itself:

TELEPHONE 750 JOHN

PAUL B. WARNER
PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT
37-39 LIBERTY STREET

NEW YORK, December 9, 1914.

Charles F. Noyes, President,
Charles F. Noyes Company,
92 William Street, City

Dear Sir:-

Enclosed you will find annual Business and Financial Statement for the year ended the 30th day of April 1914.

The report comprises various Exhibits and Schedules, which reflect a full and complete analysis of the operations of the business, departmentally and also on a per centum basis.

This report also contains comparative statistical data of your Agency, Selling and Renting Departments and sets forth the remarkable growth of your business in each department, yearly, from April 1909 to and including April 1914; a very unusual showing under the existing business depression.

To illustrate this increase you will note that the figures of April 1914 over April 1909, in per centum, are as follows:-

Number of Owners	287.50%
Number of Properties	400.00%
Number of Tenants	817.75%
Rents charged to Tenants	633.77%
Charges to Owners for Management	668.24%

The accounting department is in splendid condition and the report enclosed has my certification attached.

Very Respectfully,

P. B. Warner

IN making public the above letter we do so with a feeling of pride, but to-day, just as in 1898, when this company began, its office is open from 8.30 until 6.30 at night. We attribute our increase in business to hard work and the good service which we try to give to our clients. Business entrusted to us, whether a mortgage loan application, the selling of property or the leasing of business premises, receives our closest attention. There is always someone in authority to courteously meet clients. We have the organization to accomplish results, and we do accomplish results. We will continue to grow just as long as we deserve to grow—no longer.

In our Agency Department we have two Plant Engineers, both college men, who, while their theoretical training is excellent, have also a practical experience which is almost invaluable to clients struggling with Labor Department, Fire Department and other violations. In the economical administration of power plants and office buildings this Department renders service second to none in New York City. This technical engineering service is provided free to our clients. On our pay-roll are an Architect and a Draughtsman, and in every other Department, Mortgage, Renting or Selling, our office carries real experts.

Our organization is HANDLED ALONG CO-OPERATIVE LINES. We believe we were one of the first real estate offices to recognize that substantial success would be largely due to the efforts of our employees. Our policy in this regard is not an uncertain, indefinite policy, for self-advertisement, but a fixed plan of disbursing practically all of our profits among our employees, from the office boy to the President.

BUSINESS GAIN

We make public the letter of our Accountant showing the increase of our business because we are happy and proud to have accomplished such results. And these results only spur us on to further activity. As a matter of fact, the business we have gained since April, 1914, up to the present time IS IN EXCESS OF OUR GAIN FOR THE CORRESPONDING PERIOD OF THE YEAR BEFORE. While a feeling of pessimism apparently prevails in certain quarters, it does not rest over this office. Our business has gained, and is gaining, and we most optimistically look to the future.

As heretofore, this Company will continue to specialize in business property. Our Management Department, our Selling Department and our Leasing Department are so well known that it is needless to call attention to their strength. Each of these Departments is in charge of an expert. It is this particular branch of our business that WE HAVE BEEN SPECIALIZING FOR 16 YEARS.

MORTGAGE DEPARTMENT

This is the Department that we wish to call special attention to. Recently Edwin C. Benedict came to us to take charge of this Department. Mr. Benedict has devoted his time to the mortgage business for the past 12 or 15 years. He is probably one of the best known mortgage men in New York, having been since 1907 a Director of A. W. McLaughlin & Company, one of the foremost, if not the foremost, exclusive mortgage loan houses in Manhattan. We have plenty of money to loan on bond and mortgage, if the applications warrant. We hope those requiring mortgage money will submit their application to Mr. Benedict.

Thanking the owners of New York City real estate for the favors and courtesies that have been extended to us, and for making our business what it is to-day, and extending to the great real estate public, and to every competitor and friend that we have in the brokerage business the greetings of the season, and hoping that the cup of success will be as full for each and every one as it has been for us, we respectfully express our greetings for 1915.

AUCTION SALES OF WEEK.

Except where otherwise stated, the properties offered were in foreclosure. Adjournments of legal sales to next week are noted under Advertised Legal Sales.

* Indicates that the property described was bid in for the plaintiff's account.

The Auction Market.

John C. O'Neill, Walter S. Thomson and Jacob Pawel, parties in interest, bought the new twelve-story apartment house at 929 and 931 Park avenue, at foreclosure, on Monday, on a bid of $294,700. The property was sold subject to a mortgage of $265,000. The sale was the result of an action brought, by Polak & O'Neill against the builders, The 929 Park Avenue Company, to protect a judgment of $75,848.

For the first week of the new year, thirty parcels in Manhattan and six in the Bronx will be offered at public auction. Residential properties figure prominently among them, although one of the principal offerings will be the twelve story commercial structure at 132 to 134 West 21st street. Included among the apartment houses which will be knocked down to the highest bidder are 600 West 192d street, 203 West 112th street and the southwest corner of 113th street and Seventh avenue.

47 New Families A Day

Official figures state that every day in the year 47 new families locate in Brooklyn.

It is natural that these new residents demand living accommodations that shall be up-to-date and complete.

They are educated to the comforts and conveniences of modern life and they move to where they may obtain them.

Progressive Brooklyn builders and architects are aware of this fact and that's the reason why Electric Light is installed in 95 out of every 100 buildings erected; even to the low priced tenement.

BUILDING MANAGEMENT

PRINCIPLES TO BE OBSERVED IN DESIGNING LOFTS.

Conducted by Raymond P. Roberts, Building Manager for The American Real Estate Co.

DURING the last few years the term "loft building" has taken on an additional significance and now means any building, no matter how tall or how occupied, where the floors are "open;" that is, without corridor partitions, and with enclosures around stairs and elevators only, but so arranged that tenants may continue down the stairs without entering any loft, or entering or leaving an elevator by a door directly on the loft, so that upon leaving the elevator you find yourself in the tenant's premises. One of the foremost architects of buildings of this type (as well as of other class of buildings), Julius Franke, contributed a most interesting article on the subject of loft buildings to a recent number of the Brickbuilder, in which he made these interesting remarks:

If the modern loft building has a good façade, is well finished and equipped, there is no practical difference between it and an office building, except that the office building generally has sub-divisions on the various floors for separate tenants, so that should a good modern loft building have tenants occupying entire floors, such as is common for large clerical forces, and there are no sales rooms, no space used for storage or manufacturing, the loft building would justly be called an office building, and this designation would apply without one single change or addition to the building.

Dividing Line Indistinct.

That the dividing line between office and loft buildings, in some cases, is scarcely discernible, is evident in the case where the same building is used for both purposes, and where some floors are devoted to office use and other floors to loft use, where the space is fitted up for displaying goods, for sales rooms and sometimes for manufacturing.

Since some recent disastrous fires in factories, new laws have been passed in the State of New York, and also in some other States, which would make a loft building where manufacturing is done slightly different, in point of law, from what is ordinarily considered a loft building.

These new laws require certain fire exits, known as inside enclosed stairs, outside enclosed stairs (sometimes known as smokeproof towers), and horizontal exits, either through a wall to an adjoining building or adjoining space where refuge may be found from fire, or through bridges or balconies from one building to another, or from one space or area to another space for the same purpose.

There is also the extra precaution of sprinklers now deemed essential for such manufacturng loft buildings, which minimize materially the fire hazard.

Should Have a Simple Plan.

The plan of a manufacturing loft building should be simple. Staircases should be as far apart as possible, and maximum window surface should be provided, and all staircases should be so arranged that there is an uninterrupted free passageway to the street from each staircase or fire tower.

The location of the passenger elevators and freight elevators should be carefully considered, and should be as far apart as possible, so that customers entering the building at the passenger elevator are not obstructed by freight going to the freight elevators, and for the additional reason that the office is always located near the passenger elevator on the various floors, where it would obviously be wrong to handle freight.

The entrance and first story accommodations at the freight elevators should be commodious and direct.

Toilets for both men and women should be provided for the building on each floor, unless it can be decided in advance what the occupancy shall be.

Where railroad and water transportation for freight in conjunction with the manufacturing loft building is to be considered, both sides of the building on the first story should have ample platform facilities, one side being devoted to the railroad and the waterfront, if there is such, for the reception and discharge of freight, and the other should be devoted to trucking for city or town delivery.

If possible, it is well to have the truck enter the building so as to be under cover in bad weather, although this is not essential.

Planning for Trucking Traffic.

The planning of a manufacturing loft building for railroad and trucking traffic is apparently a very simple problem, but many serious mistakes have been made. The elevators in such buildings have been so located that either the traffic to railroad cars or to the trucks is handicapped. The staircases have been provided in such places as to obstruct the free handling of freight on the first story. The elevators have been located so that the aisles, which are not shown on plans, but which are necessary for manufacturing or for storage on the upper floors, could not be provided in direct lines, in order to have proper circulation.

Altogether, the planning of such a building requires an intimate knowledge of the economic handling of freight, both by rail and wagon or automobile, and demands a careful study of the process of manufacturing for each particular industry, in order to evolve a successful scheme and provide accommodations for the right number of employees, with proper allowance for expansion.

Must Be Practical.

The plan should be simple and direct, and all ideas of "axis" and balance and appearance of the plan should be subordinated to the practical, even though the eye be offended at the "presentation" on paper. It is more important that there be proper circulation of freight and merchandise than that there be balance, also natural light for manufacturing purposes should be considered before the relation of voids and solids for the facade.

If the intensely practical be allowed free sway in these matters, the building can be made an architectural success by certain refinements of line, color and texture, and the result will be much more satisfactory from a truly artistic point of view, for the design will be more apt to express the use to which the building is to be put.

It is of more importance that the occupants of a building do not unnecessarily waste energy or time due to a plan which is injudicious, or that their health and comfort are not sacrificed when light and air are made subordinate to design.

There is, on the other hand, no excuse for the many repulsive and sordid looking factory buildings scattered over our land, and the ugly trestle, with sprinkler tanks extending over the roofs of so many, could be enclosed with towers that would be made a feature capable of artistic treatment, and have the advantage of keeping the water from freezing without extraordinary precautions, and also reduce repairs.

The safety of the occupants of lofts and factories, in case of fire, is now given considerable attention, and although modern factories are generally built "fire-resistive," they are also sprinkled, in addition to which enclosed staircases are now almost universal.

It might be advisable, in some cases, to go a step farther and provide fire-walls subdividing all shops into two or more areas; but care should be taken not to over do this, as fire-walls have a tendency to shut off natural light and ventilation, lack of which, every one admits, does not increase the health of the worker. It should be borne in mind that tens of thousands die of tuberculosis, due to insufficient light and air; certainly by many thousands more than die by fire.

Bronx Chamber Meets.

On last Saturday evening the first annual meeting of the newly organized Bronx Chamber of Commerce was held, in the Walworth Building, in the Bronx, and the following officers were elected: Albert E. Davis, president; John C. Walworth, 1st vice-president; H. Gerald Chapin, 2nd vice-president; Charles Ullman, 3rd vice-president; Joseph M. Taylor, secretary; Joseph E. Dobbs, treasurer, and Louis F. Stumpf, counsellor. Mr. Davis, in addressing the meeting, said in part:

"This chamber is evidence of your aspirations for an ideal civic and commercial body in which, and through which, you can exert your best efforts for the advancement of the Bronx. It affords opportunity for the civic pride and public spirit in each of you to work together for the welfare of the community.

"We must strive to prevent, by a constitutional provision, if necessary, a repetition of that official lawlessness, which for four years has ignored ordinances. There is much we can do to make this borough a better place to live in, but it is no easy task that we have set for ourselves.

"Optimism is taking the place of pessimism, and we all believe that good times are coming, and what everyone believes is sure to prevail."

A resolution was adopted approving the proposed consolidation, in one bureau, of the functions of all departments, now having jurisdiction over buildings. Mr. Whinston offered a motion, which was adopted, asking the Interborough Company to issue transfers at the south end of 148th street stairs of the 149th street "L" station. Several other matters came up for consideration.

International Engineering Congress.

The International Engineering Congress will be held in San Francisco, Cal., from September 20 to 25, 1915. In view of the conditions now prevailing in Europe, the governing bodies of the five National societies under whose auspices the congress is to be held, have recently given careful consideration to the feasibility of holding the congress and to the probability of its success, with the result that each body has unanimously confirmed its original pledge to support the congress.

The committee of management is in receipt of a sufficient number of communications from various foreign countries throughout the world, including those located within the war zone, to indicate that a large majority of the papers originally requested for presentation at the sessions of the congress and publication in its transactions will be handed in on time.

Be Careful What You Sign.

Too many people look upon the contents of a warranty deed as merely so much verbiage. This is wrong. Apparent repetitions and what to the unthinking person may appear a mere redundance of phraseology is often fraught with the most important and most significant meaning. Otherwise it would not be in the document. This meaning is not merely "legal" as that word is often used, but it is meant to be effective from a common sense standpoint. Carelessly drawn deeds are the cause of controversies which sometimes prove costly to all parties concerned. Right here it is well to make it plain that ignorance of the meaning of the contents of a document, where there is ample opportunity to become familiar therewith, is no excuse, either in law or in fact. Plainly stated, there is no reason why a person should not know just what is meant by any document brought forward for signature in a real estate transaction.

It is the experience of a great many of the leading real estate agents that they have to read over a document and explain its meaning or insist on the signer or signers reading it before signing, and not infrequently this is done almost under protest from the persons most vitally concerned. Just about the best bit of advice that can be given these people is: "Read the papers carefully; understand them, and know just what you are signing when you put your name to any sort of an obligation or agreement, binding upon yourself, your heirs or your assigns."—National Real Estate Journal.

LOT VALUES.

How Affected by Topography and Proximity to Corners.

The Deputy Tax Commissioners of the City of New York are guided by the following principles in estimating values:

If the lot under consideration has rock upon it, its value is reduced by some proportion of the cost of rock removal. In some cases there may be sufficient demand for rock to render it probable that the owner of the lot could procure the removal of the rock for less than the usual cost of removal. In some cases the cost of rock removal would be greater than the value of a standard lot at grade; in such a case it does not follow that the lot has no market value, but its value is much less than the value of a lot at grade.

If a lot is so much below grade as to require filling, its value is ordinarily depreciated by the cost of filling it, but it may be so situated that its value is actually greater than that of a lot at grade, because payment may be obtained for the privilege of using the lot as a dumping place.

The question of the extent to which a lot may be depreciated in value by being above or below grade must be considered with reference to all the surrounding conditions. The unit, however, always represents the value that a lot would have if it lay normally with reference to the grade of the street.

When a lot is situated at the corner of two intersecting streets, its value is greater than when it is at some distance from the corner. The appreciation due to its corner position varies in accordance with the relative value of the intersecting streets and the character of the neighborhood.

In a suburban section where the appropriate development is by the erection of detached houses, the appreciation because of corner position may not be more than 25 per cent. for a lot 25x100; on the other hand, when the lot is at the corner of two streets, both of which are good retail shopping streets, the increment of value of a lot 25x100 may be more than 200 per cent. over the value of an adjacent interior lot.

The appropriate increment of value due to corner position must be considered with reference to the actual earning power and consequent selling value of corner lots in the particular section. The distance from a corner to which the influence upon value of proximity to the corner extends depends upon the character of development appropriate for the neighborhood. Where a lot 100 feet square is the appropriate size for a building, the corner influence extends to the whole 100 feet. On the other hand, where a vacant plot 100 feet square at a corner would be improved with four or more buildings, the corner influence extends no farther than the width of the first lot.

Where the appropriate improvement of a section demands lots of standard size, a lot of greater width than standard size has no more relative value than a lot of standard size, but where the appropriate building for that section requires a plot of greater depth, the larger plot has a greater relative value than the standard lot. In such cases an appropriate addition must be made to the value above that indicated by the unit, according to the size of the particular lot to be valued.

In a tenement house section in Manhattan a lot 37½ feet wide is worth relatively more than a lot 25 feet wide because a tenement house under the law cannot profitably be built on a lot 25 feet wide, whereas an economical tenement house can be erected on a lot 37½ feet wide. In a territory suitable for lofts a lot 50 feet wide is worth more than twice as much as a lot 25 feet wide, and generally a lot 100 feet wide would be worth more than twice as much as a lot 50 feet wide. The appropriate increase for plottage must be considered with reference to the actual conditions prevailing in the section where the lot is situated. An addition for plottage may be as great as 20 per cent. or even more. Conversely, if an appropriate improvement cannot be erected on a lot less than 25 feet in width a reduction must be made below the value which would be produced by the unit, varying with the degree of depreciation due to the unusable character of the land in question.

THE TAX BOOKS.

Procedure Usually Followed in Passing on Appeal for Lower Assessed Values.

About Dec. 1 the Tax Board began to to hear the applications of persons who ask for an oral hearing. Oral hearings are only given when requested. In a majority of cases applicants for a reduction do not ask to be heard in person. At the hearings before the commissioners, the deputy commissioner whose district is under consideration is present. He has his field book and map, prepared to answer questions concerning the assessments being considered. These hearings continue during December and January. On Feb. 1 the annual record of the assessed valuation of real estate closes, and during February the deputy commissioners and their clerks prepare the assessment rolls.

The assessment rolls are a copy of the annual record with certain details omitted. All that is really necessary in the assessment roll is the description of the property by lot numbers together with the assessed valuation figures. The assessment rolls must be finished in February, and then they are signed by the Tax Commissioners.

As soon as practicable the total assessed values are transmitted in February to the Controller in order that the tax rate ordinance may be prepared for submission to the Board of Aldermen. The Board of Aldermen meet for this purpose on March 1, and pass the ordinance fixing the tax rate. Immediately the Deputy Commissioners and their clerks compute the taxes which must be paid on each separately assessed parcel of real estate. So that this work may be done quickly and correctly rate cards are used showing the amount of the tax for $1 and $100 and on multiples. In this way the computation of taxes is made as easy as possible.

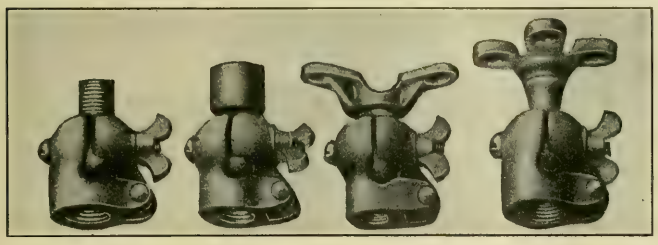
Advertise the Building Service.

In the same boat with the merchant who fills his store by liberal advertising, is the building owner or manager who bids for tenants through the medium of printed salesmanship. Where the one is selling merchandise, the other is selling service.

A booklet just issued by the Otis Elevator Company is entitled, "Presenting the Building's Service in the Building's Advertisement." It contains this argument:

"The prospective tenant is looking for service. Of course, while there is always in his mind the consideration of location, light and air, yet in nine cases out of ten his final choice of business or home quarters is influenced by the service that the building offers.

"Because buildings have been profitably advertised without specifying equipment does not mean that if the equipment had been brought out, as in these advertisements, the results would not have been even better and the expense of advertising before the space was leased, much lessened.



"Surely, if stores whose sole purpose is to sell merchandise, consider it worth while to advertise their service equipment, the building manager who is selling service should overlook no means of emphasizing his building's equipment and especially the elevator equipment."

USEFUL APPLIANCES

Novelties, New Applications of Familiar Devices and the Trend of Invention, Designed to Aid the Architect, Builder and Building Manager, Described Without Regard to Advertising Consideration

A New Form of Hickey.

THERE are few jobs where the wireman or fixture hanger finds outlet boxes level, or studs or drops straight, or does not run into crooked threads which finally have the same result. To relieve these troubles of the past there has been developed an adjustable ball and socket-joint hickey, with an angle of possible correction, sufficient to take care of a fixture 12 inches long that will be 4 inches off center, or a 6-foot fixture 24 inches out of plumb. By a slight cutting of the corners of one side of the cup with a file or emery wheel, the angle of pitch may even extend beyond 45 degrees, which is a feature very valuable when the outlets occur on a sloping ceiling such as is found with saw tooth construction or under threatre balconies, stairways, etc.

The new hickey is made of high-grade malleable iron and is of great mechanical strength, small, neat and compact, and low in price. It is furnished complete with a tripod, crow-foot or outlet box stud or made to fit insulating joints, the bottom of which may be either male or female, ¼ inch or ⅜ inch standard pipe size, and to connect fixture stems of ⅛ inch, ¼ inch or ⅜ inch standard pipe size.

The minimum overall length of this hickey with an insulating joint is less than one inch greater than the ordinary hickey and insulating joint. As a time saver it is claimed to be a 10 to 50 per cent, reduction on the average cost of hanging electric fixtures. One man can handle any fixture not too heavy to lift. Long arm, wide spread fixtures are just as simple and easily hung as the plain stem fixtures, as there is no turning or twisting of the fixture necessary. After the crow-foot or insulating joint with the ball fitting has been attached, the fixture is hung by slipping the bolt through the hole in the ball, swinging up the hinged cup or socket and screwing up the wing nut. The fixture hangs plumb and cannot twist or swing. A tightening of swing nut leaves the joint rigid.

Foolish Boiler Laws.

SO accustomed are Americans, living in cities to the conveniences of steam heat, power, electricity and other comforts provided by steam of one sort or another, that it does not occur to us that we are constantly living in danger. The American Society of Mechanical Engineers has made a six months' inquiry of the number of boiler accidents throughout the country and reports as follows:

"Throughout the United States each year there are between 1,300 and 1,400 serious boiler accidents, of which 300 to 400 are violent explosions. These accidents kill between 400 and 500 persons, injure 700 to 800 more, and destroy more than half a million dollars worth of property. In a single explosion, that of the R. B. Grover Shoe Company at Brockton, Mass., fifty-eight persons were killed, 117 more were injured, $250,000 worth of property was destroyed, and an aggregate of $280,000 was claimed in the personal injury and death suits that were brought. In a period of forty-six years since 1867, over 10,000 people have been killed and over 15,000 injured in boiler explosions.

"These disasters emphasize the necessity of constructing and installing steam vessels and their appurtenances in as nearly perfect a manner as possible; the importance of preventing carelessness in their operation, and the wisdom of having them inspected at regular intervals by disinterested experts.

"At the present time ten States and nineteen municipalities have in force laws for the compulsory inspection of steam boilers in which are comprised a code of practical rules for their construction and operation, and a number of other States and municipalities either have prepared or are now preparing similar laws for enactment. The laws now in force all differ from one another in a number of material respects, and unless some relief can be obtained, each new law as enacted will differ from all the others.

By reason of the differences in these laws a boiler built in one State having such a law may not be shipped into another State—not because the boiler is any less safe in one State than in another—but solely because it does not meet the requirements of construction in both States. Worse than this, a State which has no such law becomes a common dumping ground for all the worn-out and unsafe boilers that are condemned and put out of service by the States that have such laws.

A Level Projector.

IN obtaining the elevations of points on a wall or column inaccessible for direct sight with a leveling instrument, a device called the "level projector" has been invented by a consulting engineer of this city, says the Engineering Record. It consists of a right-angle triangular apparatus and a steel tape. The triangle is placed against the wall, as shown in the accompany photograph, and by means of two leveling screws the upper leg is made perpendicular to the wall at the point where an elevation is sought. To facilitate this operation a water level has been mounted on the leg. At the outer end are two disks which serve to hold the tape between them. On the side of the horizontal leg is a straight line from the pin-point on the wall to a mark on these disks. When the tape has been placed between the disks so that its zero mark is on this line it is also at the elevation of the point on the wall. The elevation above the plane of sight of the level can then be read on the tape, which is held in a vertical position by a plumb-bob.

The device is suitable for obtaining elevations or levels in or on buildings, for mining shafts and for projecting levels in subways or tunnels. In connection with the construction of subways it is important to obtain points on the main supporting part of the adjoining buildings, referred to some bench mark which would not be disturbed by the excavation for the subway. It is also necessary to check these points from time to time for settlement. Frequently the main columns at the street level are inaccessible and covered with cement or other facing. It, therefore, becomes necessary to obtain the level of a point on the main wall of the building just above the first floor's level, 12 feet or more above the sidewalk. With such projections as sills and store cornices it becomes difficult to obtain accurately the level of a point on the main wall so far above the street.

In projecting levels in tunnels or in vertical shafts obstructions frequently appear which make it necessary to change the set-up of the level instrument so frequently that much time is lost and necesarily the accuracy of the measurements is reduced. This apparatus permits the establishment of any point on the wall with reference to points at a considerable distance above or below it. After the point has been established the apparatus can be swung laterally so that marks can be obtained on adjoining walls or other supports, no matter how rough the texture of the surface may be.

TWELVE MONTHS OF BUILDING CONSTRUCTION

Comparative Table of Plans Filed in Five Boroughs Since January 1 — Brooklyn Shows Increase of 722 Buildings

THE record of building operations according to the revised figures of the Building Superintendents of the five boroughs from Jan. 1, 1914, up to and including Saturday, December 26, in Brooklyn and Queens, and to December 30, in Manhattan, Bronx and Richmond, closed with $120,375,313, to be expended as compared with $145,644,339, for the entire twelve months of 1913.

The number of new building projects filed during the same period of 1914, was 11,417 as compared with 10,705 for the whole year of 1913, showing that there was an increase of 712 buildings. In Manhattan the decrease specified cost over last year was $28,500,020, numbering 167 buildings, the falling off being chiefly in dwellings, costing between $20,000 and $50,000 and over; tenements, stores and lofts, costing more than $30,000, and public buildings (places of amusement). In the Bronx, the decrease was 111 buildings, costing $3,725,107 less than during 1913, showing that fewer brick apartments costing more than $15,000 are to be erected.

Up to December 26 the Borough of Brooklyn shows a large increase in plans filed as compared with last year, with 722 more buildings to be erected at an increased expenditure of $7,231,984. The principal gain was in tenement houses, exceeding last year's total by 220 projects, to cost $5,513,000, and in one and two-family dwellings.

In Queens there is an increase of $816,578 in the amount to be expended, and 130 more buildings projected. Richmond shows an increase of 145 more buildings than last year, but $1,108,741 less to be expended, the increased number being mainly due to bungalow construction, whereas the falling off in the amount is explained by late filings at the close of 1913 for two municipal buildings, a theater and a hotel.

As the year closes there are signs of decided improvement in the number of structures to be erected in the Metropolitan district, including the five Eastern counties of New Jersey, Westchester, Nassau, Suffolk and Richmond. Within the last month there has been a noticeable revival in the number of important operations that were held for a long time in abeyance.

The Mount Sinai Hospital group, consisting of four buildings to be situated on Madison avenue, 99th to 100th streets, from plans by A. W. Brunner, to cost about $1,500,000, will probably be started early this year. Barnum & Everdell, owners, through the Thompson-Starrett Company, general contractor, are about to proceed with the twelve-story mercantile building covering the block front on Broadway, between 35th and 36th streets, from plans by Clinton & Russell, to cost, nearly $1,000,000. John H. Parker Company, general contractor, is to start work immediately on the Staten Island courthouse, at St. George, from plans by Carrere & Hastings, to cost about $350,000; and soon after January 1, operations will go ahead on two 12-story hotels, one to be situated on Riverside Drive, northeast corner of 96th street, for the Palmer Realty Company, and another, at the southwest corner of Fifth avenue and 11th street, for J. W. T. Nichols, costing together approximately $500,000, and the new Government Post Office building, at 73-77 Pine street.

The new Bowery Branch Y. M. C. A., estimated to cost $400,000, which has been under consideration for more than four years is now to be built, the general contract having been awarded to the George A. Fuller Company. Maynicke & Franke will take bids, about February 1, for the sixteen-story store and loft building, which the Estate of Frederick Ayer will erect at the northeast corner of Broadway and 26th street, to cost $800,000.

The Board of Supervisors of Westchester County at White Plains has appointed a special committee to investigate requirements for a new court house to cost $1,000,000, and also a $400,000 penitentiary to be used as a county jail and workhouse.

A more complete list of principal buildings which refers mainly to operations in prospect to be erected during 1915, showing a total of estimated costs specified of nearly $51,600,000 will be found on another page of this issue. The following tables show the number and estimated cost of new buildings and alterations for which plans were filed according to the revised figures of the Building Bureaus, after allowing for the plans withdrawn and revised:

Long Island City Prospects.

Milton L. Lissburger, president of the Queens Borough Board of Trade, said yesterday:

"I sent out a questionaire to manufacturers in the Long Island City section asking them to report upon the condition of business in their establishments.

"We have received replies from most of the large concerns and every report is tinged with optimism," he said.

"There is not one of the concerns which reports that it will reduce its force or cut down operation after the first of the year."

A Poughkeepsie Development.

Announcement is made that the firm of George Van Schoick & Son, real estate dealers, has purchased a tract of 38 acres, formerly part of the George Houghs property in Poughkeepsie, for $21,000. The Van Schoick firm will lay the tract out into building lots and develop it. This firm laid out the Fair Ground Boulevards.

—At the northwest corner of Nassau and Wall streets, where is now the Bankers' Trust Company, was the fashionable tavern of John Simmons. The evening of the day the Americans entered the city as the British evacuated it Washington and his general officers were given a dinner there.

—The site of the Public Library in Bryant Park is valued at $18,500,000.

THE NEW FACTORY DISTRICT.

Presents a Difficult Problem to the Fire Department, Says Commissioner Adamson.

At the luncheon of the Fifth Avenue Association at Hotel Manhattan, Wednesday noon, Commissioner Robert Adamson gave an interesting condition of structural conditions in the territory covered by the association.

Within this territory is one of the largest factory districts in the world. There are 24,866 factories with 530,289 employees in Manhattan Island, and over half of them are in this territory, that is to say, north of a line drawn through Washington Square east and west across Manhattan, and south of 59th street. These factories are housed in lofts, in converted residences, in buildings formerly used as stores. Some of the buildings are not fireproof at all; others semi-fireproof, others entirely fireproof.

"By far the greater number of the employees in this district are in non-fireproof and semi-fireproof buildings," said the Commissioner. "This is a new manufacturing district in New York, dating back hardly more than fifteen years, and much of it is of far more recent development. With a desire for cheaper insurance, better light, better location and many other advantages, factory owners have come from old rookeries and tenements further downtown.

"This new district presents a new fire problem, and one of the most difficult problems before the Fire Department. These buildings are heavily stocked with light combustible material and crowded with human beings. There is, in such places, always the panic danger even where the fire danger is minimized. The fact that the factory is in a fireproof building does not mean that there is no danger. Proper fire appliances, proper housekeeping and adequate exit facilities are essential to the safety of a building, no matter how fireproof it may be. The Triangle building was a fireproof building and an excellent one, but it had no sprinklers, the doors were locked, and no doubt the clippings and waste were not properly cleaned up and some of the employees smoked.

"The occupancy clause of the Labor Law fixes the number of persons allowed in a factory. There are 35,849 factories in New York City and to expect the Labor Department, with a limited force and so many other things to do, to see that this clause is enforced every day in all these factories is to expect the impossible. If the occupancy clause was strictly observed by the tenants, many of the loft factories and other factories in your neighborhood would be seeking other tenants and the crowd of workmen on Fifth avenue at noon time would be reduced.

"Conditions in these factories are much better than they were a year ago. The improvement is in the maintenance of the buildings. Receptacles are provided for waste. 'No Smoking' orders are better enforced, the doors open outwardly and exit exposures have been pretty generally fireproofed. Therefore the danger of fire breaking out in these places has been greatly reduced, but there has been little increase in exits and, I fear, little decrease in occupancy.

Improved Conditions.

"Since a year ago the Fire Department has divided jurisdiction in factories with the Labor Department. The Labor Department has jurisdiction over the exits and we over the fire appliances and over fire drills and fire alarm systems. I have told you how many factories there are in New York. Every one of these factories over two stories in height in which more than twenty-five persons are employed must have fire drills and must install a fire alarm system. And the Fire Commissioner is required to see that both of these things are properly done and that without any increase whatever in his force. It shows you how easily these things can be done by legislation and that it is not always so easy to do them in actual practice. I asked for additional men to supervise the installation of fire alarm systems and I think we will be able to get perhaps a dozen inspectors some time early next year by transfer from the Water Department.

Too Many Inspections.

"There is a great deal of discussion now about changes in the law. It is true there are too many inspections. Jurisdiction over building inspection can be consolidated into less than half the bureau where it is now lodged, but the remedy is not in any reactionary plan which would ——— —— Fire Prevention Bureau and the Tenement House Department which were specially created. In response to great public demand to safeguard particular conditions which are dangerous. One central bureau exercising the jurisdiction now exercised by all the departments which now make inspections is the ultimate ideal, but it is not now a practical ideal, unless you are prepared to sacrifice the work of fire-prevention and tenement-house reform. To abolish these departments before their work is half done, to meet a situation which can be remedied much better in another way, would be reaction instead of progress."

A New Idea in Ventilation.

In the erection of new works at Detroit, U. S. A., for the Ford motor-car manufacture an interesting and thorough scheme of ventilation has been installed. The works is a six-story building of reinforced concrete, and the system centers upon the columns or pillars which go to make the structure. These are of large diameter and hollow, and are used as ducts through which the purified air, cooled in summer and warmed in winter, is forced downward from fans on the roof.

The magnitude of the service required from the system may be gathered from the size of the building, which has nearly 1,000,000 square feet of floor area and encloses over 11,000,000 cubic feet of space, and from the fact that the wall area has 65 per cent. of window, which means a considerable wastage of heat in the winter months.

According to press reports, the plant is divided up into eight units, located in eight pent-houses on the roof. In each pent-house is a 6 ft. by 3 ft. centrifugal fan, an air heater (or cooler), with 10,000 square feet of surface, and an air-washing chamber 11 ft. high by 12 ft. wide and 10 ft. long, fitted with water sprays and baffle plates. The air is forced at a pressure of 2 in. of water down the duct in the center of the concrete columns. In order that the distribution may be equal on all six floors the area of the duct must be less at the bottom of the building than at the top, and this fits in very well with structural necessities, as the column walls have naturally to be stronger at the lower levels.

The apertures which admit the fresh air into the rooms are located in the sides of the pillars at about 8 ft. from the floor level, and are in every case directed towards an outside wall, so as to break up the stream of cold air which, in winter, hovers around the windows, and ensures an equable temperature throughout the rooms. Normally the air required for circulation is drawn in by the fans from the outer atmosphere, but means have also been provided whereby, when desirable, the previously-warmed air can be drawn in again after its passage through the shops, and re-circulated after washing and re-heating, and exhaust ducts for this purpose have been fitted in the ceilings of the various rooms above the craneways. The hot water used for heating the air is obtained from the jackets of the large gas engines which drive the works.

—In 1790 Nassau, Wall and Liberty streets were widened to their present breadth. Federal Hall was converted into a capitol, at a cost of $32,000. It extended from the east line of the Assay Office to the west side of Nassau street. The jog still visible in the street was the place left for the passage around the hall.

Contracts for Cathedral Plans.

Trustees of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine signed contracts with Cram & Ferguson, architects of Boston, for construction plans and designs for the building of the nave of the cathedral. The entire cost, it was said, will be a little more than $1,000,000.

The contracts signed do not include any exterior decoration or involve the building of the two large transept towers of the four towers to be placed at each corner of the nave proper. They simply call for the rough construction plans and sketches, so that builders may start work as soon as the trustees give the word. It was announced that no date for building operations could be given, as all the money necessary has not been obtained.

About $200,000 is now ready for the nave, and it is estimated that this is large enough to warrant the trustees to get construction plans ready. Only about $200,000 can be used in building the nave in a year's time.

The nave of the cathedral will be 170 feet high and will extend within thirty feet of Amsterdam avenue. It will be about 240 feet long and constructed of Peekskill granite.

The contracts just given to Cram & Ferguson for designs for the building of the nave do not mean that the trustees have adopted the new plans as submitted by Mr. Cram last year. The trustees have not as yet adopted any exterior decoration design.

Rebuilding the Edison Plant.

The American Concrete Institute has appointed a special committee to investigate the behavior of the concrete buildings in the Edison plant at West Orange during the conflagration. The committee consists of Cass Gilbert, the well-known architect, chairman; E. J. Moore, of the Turner Construction Co., New York, secretary; Walter Cook, architect; J. Max Taylor, architect; R. P. Miller, of the New York building department; W. H. Ham, engineer, of Boston; Prof. Charles L. Norton, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Richard L. Humphrey, consulting engineer, of Philadelphia, Pa. The first step toward rebuilding was the leasing of two complete cement-gun outfits from the Cement Gun Co., of New York City. It is the intention to use these machines in repairing the damaged columns and girders, though the precise methods of repair have not been fully decided upon. Steel window sash with wire glass are being installed in some of the burned-out buildings.

Big Contract For Signal System.

The Public Service Commission has approved the award of the contract by the New York Municipal Railway Corporation to the General Railway Signal Company for the equipment of the Dual System lines to be operated by the New York Municipal Company with a speed control automatic signal system to include cab signals. This is a new system of signaling by which the signals are shown in the motorman's cab, and if for any reason he fails to slow down his train at an appropriate signal a device in the track automatically engages corresponding machinery in the cars, which reduces the speed independent of the motorman's actions to the rate necessary to bring the train nearly to a stop before it approaches dangerously near the preceding train, but allows it to continue under reduced speed. Thus, the time lost by the complete stoppage of a train under the ordinary block signal is saved. The commission's engineers reported that the new system, if developed as outlined, will be a very great advance over any system of signaling heretofore used. The total bid of the General Company for equipping all the subway and elevated lines to be operated by the New York Municipal Corporation is stated at about $1,413,000.

Will Make Borings for City.

Charles P. Berley, associate professor of geology at Columbia, has been appointed to select, classify, and preserve borings taken from the sites of buildings in all parts of the city, and to prepare geologic maps of the city, for the Board of Estimate, at $25 a day, with a limitation of his payments for the year to $2,500. Chief Engineer Lewis said such a collection of borings would save the city thousands of dollars whenever it had to enter upon any new underground work.

seldom has been equalled in this city, simply because there never has been a time when there has been a six months' surcease from construction.

There is one more factor which will contribute toward higher prices of building materials with the single exception of lumber. During the last year all building material manufacturers have suffered from slow collections. This has forced, first, retrenchment in the mills and finally restricted outputs. Rather than keep expensive organizations together many a manufacturer has been forced to let his factory operatives go and supply the market from stock on hand.

In the leading departments of the building material market the Hudson River brick manufacturers closed down their plants forty days ahead of the usual time, with a complement of only 700,000,000 brick, as against a normal annual output of 1,200,000,000. In the Portland cement markets manufacturing has been continued only under considerable strain, aggravated in some instances by sharp shading. Lumber manufacturers have shut off logging operations in both soft and hardwood departments because prices are too low to permit of adequate profit and sacrifice of standing timber, and collections are too slow to permit them to take a chance. Lime manufacturers have decidedly curtailed their outputs. Linseed oil supply at Duluth is restricted, if not actually weak, as shown by 50-cent prices ruling in a dull market in an off season. This shows that paints have not been moving very fast, and manufacturers are not buying as heavily as their ordinary spring requirements would demand. The volume of paint consumption always indicates finishing of buildings and acts as a check-off for the market movement of structural steel, lumber, cement and brick several months later. In neither of these departments have recent orders corresponded with plan filings, although reported inquiries are said to have been even in excess of the estimated value of building plans filed.

Reference to the chart on another page of this issue, showing the status of the national building and building material market, will indicate clearly that there is actually in process of evolution a change for the better in prices, banking resources and general business conditions. No one should look for an immediate rise to boom conditions. There must of necessity be some stages of reaction which may be expected to develop in July, but by September, unless the law of averages fails or some great calamity like war or famine should occur, there will be noted the beginning of a rise toward prosperity that will be exceptional to say the least.

Current weekly construction progress has been interfered with to some extent by protracted cold weather and the dual holidays. Navigation has been closed on the Hudson so that the market is now entirely dependent upon its supply of reserve barges for its brick supply. Portland cement, being subject to the extra five per cent. freight rate recently granted to the railroads, may be expected to move up in price slightly, and a change is looked for in structural steel and iron prices on second and third quarter business.

Plan filings in the five boroughs for the week follow: In the same week last year 146 buildings were projected at a total estimated value of $14,065,582. Of this total $12,500,000 was credited to the projected Pan-American building, which has not gone ahead.

CEMENT.

Portland Prices Cut—Natural in Steadying Market.

REFERENCE to the adjoining monthly price table will show that there has been a change downward in Portland cement prices from the $1.58 level that has prevailed for more than a year. The general quotation made by the majority of agents here is now $1.47. Some companies are even shading this price. This brings the Lehigh mill base down to 85 cents approximately. Heretofore it has been 90 cents. Under the old price Portland cement at Jersey City was $1.46 on a fictitious lighterage basis of 12 cents, making the price here $1.58. The lighterage basis has been cut to 6 cents, so that the reduction normally would have made the quotation sag to $1.52. But there was a general reduction in the Lehigh district of five cents additional, which has brought the current price down to $1.47.

Portland cement freightage costs 80 cents a ton. Figuring five barrels to a ton, this brings the price per barrel down to 16 cents on a 400-pound barrel basis. But the average weight allowance for Portland cement barrels is 380 pounds, which normally would make the freight allowance for cement transportation 15.2 cents. Some of the companies are taking off the extra two-tenths of a cent and making the rate a flat 15 cents and giving the trade the benefit of the saving.

One prominent cement salesman said: "The only way I can account for this condition on the grounds of good business policy, is that they may have an idea that the trade will get some conception of the good times that are expected to come early in 1915, and thereby hope to gain an advantage on those who will be inclined to stock up a little, in anticipation of the hour when the pendulum will swing the other way."

William C. Morton of the Rosendale Consolidated Natural Cement Company said that this cutting did not and will not affect his quotations of 90 cents to dealers, not the dealers' quotations of $1.10 to job in New York. He said business was a little slack at present, but that there was enough moving to make him believe that things were tending toward a general improvement.

COMMON BRICK.

Closing of Navigation Shuts Off Hudson Supply.

CLOSING of navigation on the Hudson River has shut off the supply of common brick to this market by barge. This leaves available for immediate purchase on the wholesale market of 30 bargeloads, or 10,000,000 brick, as against 120 bargeloads on the corresponding day last year, representing 42,000,000 brick.

The closing of the year marks a total volume of Hudson common brick sold in this city this year at 570,850,000 brick, as against a total of 724,500,000 sold in the metropolitan district in 1913. Including the movement of Raritan and other Jersey brick in this market the grand total of common brick sold in this market this year is 750,000,000, as against 1,100,000,000 sold in the same market last year.

Official transactions for Hudson River brick covering the week ending Wednesday, Dec. 30, in the wholesale market, with comparison for the corresponding period last year, and a comparative statement of Hudson brick unloaded from barges for consumption here, follow:

THE PASSING OF THE THREE-FAMILY HOUSE

Is the Tenement House Department to Blame, or Are Social and Economic Conditions the Reason?

By CYRUS C. MILLER, Ex-President Borough of the Bronx.

THE passing of the two and three-family house in the Boroughs of Manhattan, Brooklyn and Bronx is to be regretted for many reasons. We can all remember the decent thrifty American, German and Irish owners who lived in part of their houses and rented out the other floors to tenants like themselves. In a part of the city built up in this way the conservative owners and their families numbered one-half of the citizens or at least one-third. They were frugal, industrious and law-abiding. They were interested in all the phases of city administration because they helped directly to pay the bills.

The housing of our people in multi-family tenements increases the percentage of citizens who feel no direct interest in the government and is apt to be accompanied by all the evils of overcrowding. Therefore we should encourage any movement which will help to maintain the number of land-owners and to spread out the population over a larger area. The ambition to own their own homes is common to all peoples, and this desire will be gratified whenever economic conditions permit.

This article is not intended either to support or condemn the Tenement House Law, but to examine into its effect, if any, on the three-family house. We might examine therefore, into the case of buildings erected in the last few years, to see whether there has been any lessening of the number of two and three family houses, and if so, what the causes are.

Decline of the Three-Story House.

In the year 1912 in Brooklyn there were erected 36 (or 4 per cent.) two-story tenement houses; 418 (or 47 per cent.) three-story tenement houses; 379 (or 43 per cent.) four-story tenement houses; 21 (or 2 per cent.) five-story tenement houses; 30 (or 3 per cent.) six story tenement houses, out of a total of 884 tenements.

And in the year 1913 there were erected 83 (or 10 per cent.) two-story tenement houses; 227 (or 29 per cent.) three-story tenement houses; 425 (or 54 per cent.) four-story tenement houses; 22 (or 3 per cent.) five-story tenement houses; 23 (or 3 per cent.) six-story tenement houses, out of a total of 780 tenement houses erected.

It may be seen, therefore, that there was a decrease of three-story tenement houses from 418 (or 47 per cent.) in 1912, to 227 (or 29 per cent.) in 1913. The Tenement House Law under which these houses were erected had not been changed during the two years mentioned. This is a fair example of the increasing number of four-story houses and decreasing number of three-story houses for the past ten years or more.

In the Borough of Queens the great bulk of the houses erected are three-story houses. In 1913 there were erected in Queens 25 (or 8 per cent.) two-story tenement houses: 244 (or 78 per cent.) three-story tenement houses; 43 (or 13 per cent.) four-story tenement houses; 2 (or 1 per cent) five-story tenement houses, out of a total of 314.

HON. CYRUS C. MILLER.

It must be noted that three-story tenements are not always for three families.

In 1912, out of 418 three-story tenements erected in Brooklyn 119 (or 28 per cent.) were for three families each, and the balance, or 299, were for six families each; while out of 227 three-story tenements erected in 1913 only 34 were three-family houses, which is only 15 per cent., and the balance of 193 buildings were for six families each, showing that the percentage of three-family houses had decreased from 28 per cent in 1912 to 15 per cent in 1913.

It has been claimed that the Tenement House Law, which controls the erection and maintenance of the three-family house, is so drastic that it hampers the erection of such houses. Having started with the assumption that three-family houses are desirable in the community we should follow that up with the decision that the Tenement House Law should be abolished or amended in so far as it relates to the three-family house if it has the effect that is charged, and provided also that the requirements of the Tenement House Law are unreasonable. On the other hand, while we are anxious to preserve the three-family house we must not remove the reasonable restrictions which make for healthful, safe and hygienic housing. It is evident that the construction, alteration and maintenance of such houses must be under the control of some city department.

Let us compare the provisions of the Tenement House Law as they affect the three-story, three-family house and the five-story house. (See table below.)

It would seem in the first place that the requirements for the three-family house are not unreasonable, and are not so costly as those for the five-family house. If, therefore, the number of three-family houses diminishes and the five-story house increases, we must conclude that there are reasons other than the Tenement House Law.

Economic and Social Reasons.

I am inclined to think that the reasons are economic and social, rather than legal, and this view is supported by the fact that in the older boroughs like Manhattan, Brooklyn and Bronx, where land values have increased, making heavier expenses to be secured necessarily from the rents, the three-family house is disappearing, and that in the newer boroughs like Queens and Richmond where land values are low, the three-family house flourishes. Four, five and six-story tenements, with two, three or four families on a floor, enable the owner to gain a larger income from the investment and pay the increased taxation on the higher value of the lots. The smaller apartments in a big tenement likewise can be rented for a smaller rent and, therefore, meet the economic necessities of the tenants.

At present the three-story and four-story building are treated alike by the Tenement House Law with regard to fire protection and light courts.

Perhaps it would encourage the building of three-family houses if the provisions of the law now applicable to the five-story tenement were applied to the four-story tenements. This would require fireproof halls and stairs and larger light courts, but the question then would arise whether this would not result in increasing the cost of four-story tenements and therefore encouraging

	Three-story (three-family).	Five-story.
FIRE PROTECTION.
Material of building:	The entire building may be of wood if outside the fire limits.	Building must have walls of brick, stone or concrete.
Beams over cellar:	The cellar is the danger point, yet beams may be of wood.	Iron or steel beams with fireproof filling required.
Cellar stairs:	May be inside of the building, though this is dangerous construction.	Outside cellar stairs prohibited. No opening between cellar and upper stories permitted.
Stairs:	May be of wood, soffits or under side to be covered with metal lath or plaster boards.	Stairs must be iron, steel, marble or stone in all their parts.
Stair halls:	Floors may be wooden beams with 5 inches of cement deafening.	Floors must be iron beams with fireproof filling.
Stair Hall Enclosure:	Stairs may be enclosed with ordinary wooden stud partitions covered on both sides with metal lath or plaster boards.	Stairs must be enclosed within brick walls with fireproof self-closing doors at all openings.
LIGHT AND VENTILATION.
Yards:	Need be only 10 ft. deep.	Must be 12 ft. deep.
Outer courts:	Permitted to be 4 ft. wide.	Must be 6 ft. wide.
Inner courts:	May be 4 ft. wide by 12 ft. long.	Must be 12 ft. wide by 24 ft. long.
Lighting of stairs and halls:	No window required; skylight in the roof with 12-inch stairwell sufficient.	Window to the outer air of 18 sq. ft. required for each floor.

the building of more five and six-story tenements, instead of helping the three-story house.

Where the Three-Family House Pays.

If the law is reasonable, and three-family houses continue to diminish in number we must take some other means of preserving them, if it be possible. There seems to be no difficulty in making a three-family house pay where the lot values are from $500 to $1,000. The question is a closer one where the lot values are from $1,000 to $1,500. From $1,500 to $2,500 it is hardly possible to make it pay, and from $2,500 up it seems to be impossible. Where the three-family house is built on a low-priced lot and pays, it runs the risk of ceasing to pay in a district of rapidly increasing lot values, long before it becomes obsolete from natural causes.

There has been some effort made to take the three-family house out of the control of the Tenement House Department. In some cases this has been urged by people who have built such houses contrary to law and are being prosecuted by the department for such violations. Naturally they would like to be relieved of the law. Others again would like to make over existing private houses into two and three-family houses without observing the reasonable requirements of the law. The effect of this undoubtedly would be pernicious.

Again, the effect on four, five and six-story tenements erected to comply with the present law might be injurious if the vast number of private dwellings were converted into two and three-family houses and placed on the market. Whether they would be permanently economic is another question.

I am satisfied, however, that a good deal of the pressure is brought to bear by persons who are sincerely of the opinion that the three-family house could be made to pay, and perhaps they are under the impression that the Tenement House Law is to blame. If the causes for the decrease of three-family houses are social and economic, rather than legal, it will not help matters any to take them from the control of the Tenement House Department, or amend the law.

If we were to enact a law forbidding the erection of tenement houses more than four stories in height it undoubtedly would result in the spreading of the population over a greater area. Also it would prevent the increase in the value of lots now available for five and six-story tenements, but on the other hand, probably it would make for more stable and uniform values and, therefore would be beneficial.

I should like to see a plan for a three-family tenement house, observing reasonable requirements for light and air and safety, adapted for a lot costing from $1,500 to $2,500 and capable of withstanding the competition of tenements of four, five or six stories in height and having anywhere from two to four families on a floor. If this could be done it would undoubtedly be of great benefit to the community.

A NEW CODE OF CITY ORDINANCES FRAMED

A Complete Recodification, Which Includes All General Ordinances Adopted Since 1906, Now Pending in the Board of Aldermen

IN the City Record of January 7, will be found the latest Code of Ordinances of the City of New York. The charter provides that the general ordinances shall be reduced to a code and published. It also directs the Board of Aldermen to appoint a committee that shall compile and publish such ordinances, annually. The Code of Ordinances now in force became effective on January 1, 1906. Since then, it has not been revised, nor has there been prepared and published, in any year, the required compilation of the general ordinances.

Immediately upon the designation of the present codification committee in January, 1914, its members determined to go farther than to comply literally with the requirements of the charter. Instead of a mere compilation of the ordinances of 1914, it was decided to produce a complete recodification of the existing code of ordinances, which should include all general ordinances adopted since 1906, in the form of a permanent volume, to be readily adaptable to future amendments and expansions.

In form, the revised draft of the proposed Code of Ordinances, now submitted, has been moulded on the lines of the Consolidated Laws. The provisions relating to particular subjects have been correlated and divided into chapters, which have been arranged in alphabetical order. By statute, the Sanitary Code, the Park Ordinances and the Regulations of the Municipal Explosives Commission must constitute separate and independent chapters of the Code of Ordinances, and each has its own scheme of section numbering. For these reasons it has not been feasible to number all sections of the document in a single series, in the fashion of the charter. That there might be a uniformity in this particular, the sections of each chapter of the proposed code have been numbered in a separate series and grouped in appropriate "articles."

The Building Code is included as amended to date. Its text has been correlated and rearranged in articles and sections, in conformity with the plan of the general codification, and in the order suggested by the technical advisers of the Committee on Buildings, but without change in substance; except that the committee has transferred to the Building Code chapter all provisions relating to the construction and alteration of motion-picture theatres and open-air motion-picture theatres contained in the motion picture ordinance, approved by Mayor Gaynor, July 8, 1913. This transfer was recommended by a special committee of the Citizens' Union, and is acceptable to the Commissioner of Licenses and to the technical advisers of the Committee on Buildings.

The Sanitary Code being within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Board of Health, under section 1172 of the charter, is omitted from the proposed Code of Ordinances, except in so far as it has been assigned a chapter number therein.

In its work the codification committee had the zealous help as special counsel and draftsman of Assistant Corporation Counsel Alexander C. MacNulty. The committee is also indebted to the Merchants' Association and to a committee of the Citizens' Union, especially created for the purpose, for helpful suggestions and for constructive criticisms concerning the original draft of the proposed code. F. J. Martin is the clerk of the committee, the members of which are W. H. Pendry, chairman; Arnon L. Squiers, F. H. Stevenson, John Kochendorfer, Joseph W. Spencer, Harry Robitzek, Wm. H. Chorosh, Isidor M. Rosenblum, Lauren Carroll, Louis Wendel, Jr.

The code was introduced in the Board of Aldermen at this week's meeting, and a hearing was appointed for Thursday, January 14.

Bronx Register's Report.

The first yearly report of the Register's Office of Bronx County has been issued by Register Edward Polak, and contains interesting information to the citizens of this county. The number of papers filed and recorded amounted to 42,860. Mortgages constituted 8,261 of this number, while the number of conveyances filed amounted to 8,296 and chattel mortgages 22,048. Folios were recorded to the extent of 276,609, while the value of the consideration of conveyances totaled $6,636,156; mortgages to the value of $30,534,372 were recorded and the mortgage extension amounted to $13,309,310.

The expenses were as follows:

Salaries of General Administration Department	$74,740.00
Mortgage Tax Department	9,500.00
Recording folios	13,022.15
Rent	4,875.00
Supplies	1,300.00
Total	$103,437.15

and the receipts were:

Register Polak was presented with a handsome gold-mounted Tiffany cane by the employees of the office. Deputy Register Maher made the presentation speech thanking the Register for his consideration and kindness to the employees throughout the year and wishing him, on their behalf, continued good health and prosperity. Assistant Deputy Register Henry Geiger and Chief Clerk Frederick L. Hahn also spoke.

G. SHIRMER TO BUILD EXTENSIVE PLANT

Timmis & Chapman, Architects.

TIMMIS & CHAPMAN, architects and engineers, 315 Fifth avenue, Manhattan, have completed the preliminary plans for the reinforced concrete factory building to be erected on Thomson Hill, Long Island City, for G. Schirmer, Inc., music publishers, 3 East 43d street, New York City. The structure will be one and two stories in height and will cover a plot 220 feet front by 290 feet in depth, the ground area of the structure will be approximately 63,000 square feet. The building will be erected on a plot containing forty lots, bounded by Anabel avenue, Addison place, Gosman and Gould avenues, leased by the Schirmer Company from the Courtney Development Company, through Bryan L. Kennelly. The plan will be devoted to the printing and publishing of music and allied works. The one-story section will contain the printing equipment and the first floor of the two-story structure will be used for storage purposes. The second story of this section will be used for office purposes and general business and mail order departments. Further details of this operation will be found in another column.

"PENNSYLVANIA LANE" CONNECTING LINK

Joins Heart of Shopping and Hotel Centers With Railroad Station—Ripe for Several Large Structural Operations

A STONE'S throw from Herald Square, one of the busiest business centers in New York City, and directly in front of the main entrance of the new Pennsylvania Railroad station is "Pennsylvania Lane," the block officially known as West 32d street, between Sixth and Seventh avenues. It holds an interesting place in the list of streets, the record of which constitutes New York City's real estate history.

Fifteen years ago West 32d street held no especial interest to the real estate operator or investor. In those days the site of the present Gimbel Building and the Pennsylvania station were occupied by dwellings and old-fashioned flats and tenements typical of the period, while the Sixth avenue frontage contained the old Standard Theatre and Trainor's Hotel.

Gimbel Brothers leased for twenty-one years from August 1, 1910, with the privilege of four renewals of twenty-one years each, the easterly half of this block, fronting 400 feet in West 32d street and 197.6 feet on Broadway. The lease, recorded on April 15, 1909, indicates a rental of $605,000 and $655,000 in gold, if so demanded, at stated periods during the term.

A canvass of "Pennsylvania Lane" resulted in interesting observations. The street in its present state contains a number of striking contrasts. The west side is occupied by part of the Gimbel Brothers' department store. The rest of the block, not vacant, contains four and five-story buildings tenanted by various firms including artificial stone manufacturers, carpenters and mirror and novelty dealers.

The south side of the street, towards the neighborhood of the station are being replaced by business structures. Many people interested in "Pennsylvania Lane" believe that its development will be along similar lines.

The plans of the Pennsylvania Railroad in connection with its large holdings in the street may, of course, change the entire aspect of the situation. All sorts of rumors have been current regarding its contemplated improvement, but none of these have materialized. Perhaps the owners of the properties in the south side of West 32d street are biding their time and are waiting the action of the railroad company. This may be one of the reasons why there has been little selling; there may, of course, be other reasons.

Of particular interest at this time is the partition suit of Marjorie D. Cleland against Mabel R. Cleland and others,

EAST FROM PENNSYLVANIA STATION.

LOOKING WEST IN THIRTY-SECOND STREET.

In 1900 and 1901 the district, West 32d street included, was placed, figuratively speaking, "on the map," by the announcement of the extensive plans of the Pennsylvania Railroad for a terminal, and by the additional report that the corner of 34th street and Broadway as the site of their new department store. Up to that time the neighborhood had been quiet as far as real estate activity was concerned. In West 32d street property had been held at prices between $500 to $1,000 a front foot, with little eagerness evident among purchasers.

These two developments, however, changed the situation materially. The removal of R. H. Macy & Company afforded the impetus to the movement which resulted in the establishment of the new retail shopping district in the vicinity of Broadway and 34th street. As a consequence, land values began to rise in the affected areas, until today, in a great many instances, values have trebled during the last ten years. The whole district, renamed the Pennsylvania station zone since the undertaking of this huge project, has experienced the boom and consequent rises in values which are now history.

In West 32d street, however, since the Pennsylvania Railroad acquired the west half of the block bounded by Broadway, West 33d street and Seventh avenue, owners have been holding firm, and there have been comparatively few transactions. In 1909 Sixth avenue, is distinctly a loft and office building row. At 116 to 120 is the sixteen-story mercantile structure, known as the Cuyler Building, of recent construction. That portion of the block west of this property and extending to Seventh avenue is occupied by a row of delapidated dwellings, very few having tenants and a great many in various stages of deterioration. In one building, near Seventh avenue, the front wall has been either removed or destroyed and the interior walls and partitions confront the passerby. Several of the houses are almost entirely placarded with various signs and advertisements. In fact, this part of the block is ripe for a substantial building movement. The southeast corner of Seventh avenue and West 32d street is used for lumber storage purposes by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

In the opinion of a great many, this condition can only be a temporary one, and the unusual advantages which the street enjoys with reference to its geographical position cannot but result in its ultimate improvement along lines that will derive all the possible benefits of these advantages. Its unique position with reference to the big department stores and its proximity to the Pennsylvania Railroad station where passengers reach New York City from all parts of the country offer possibilities for several kinds of building construction.

In what is known as the Grand Central terminal zone, residential blocks in affecting the property at 142 West 32d street. It is a three-story dwelling, on lot 20x47.7x irregular in the middle of the block. The property is flanked on the west by the dwelling belonging to the church of St. Francis of Assissi and on the east by a similar holding of Anna M. Defendorf.

One of the reasons why the future of West 32d street should be assured is on account of the splendid transit facilities which now operate in the district. In addition to the Sixth avenue elevated railroad, which has a station at West 33d street, there is the McAdoo tube, operating to several railroad systems, with terminals in New Jersey. The Fifth avenue 'bus line operates vehicles in this street, and all the principal surface trolley lines run, or issue transfers, to the district. The new system in Broadway and the one to operate in Seventh avenue will have stations within easy access of West 32d street.

In New York City transit facilities have been largely responsible for the uplift and rise in land values of a great many neighborhoods. "Pennsylvania Lane" is available to practically every transportation line in Manhattan and it cannot but feel the benefits of such a location. That it has distinct advantages is generally conceded. What its exact ultimate development will be is problematic, though it will be of a mercantile nature. For many years a rumor of a hotel has been afloat, but up to the present nothing definite has been decided on.

SEARCHING QUESTIONS ABOUT INCOMES

A Revised Form for Individuals to Fill Out—More Particulars Asked Concerning Deductions for Depreciation of Buildings

BOTH individuals and corporations will be called upon to answer a new set of questions when they make their next return of annual net income to the U. S. Internal Revenue Collector. The new yuestionaires will draw the net a little tighter. The form which individuars are expected to fill out on or before March 1 next is now available at the offices of the Revenue Collector, but the form on which corporations will make their return has not yet been received from Washington, though it will be soon, together with a revised code of instructions. Claims for exemptions or reductions must be filed thirty days previously.

The new form for individuals is No. 1,040 (revised). The first question asked is: "Did you render a return of income for the preceding year? If you did not, you may expect that sooner or later a government agent will ask why." "If so, in what district was it filed?" is the next question, and this gives rise to the inference that the collector means to look it up and compare it with this year's return.

The next return must be made in every case from the district in which the individual lives and not from the district where he carries on business, or whence he derives his income. There are several internal revenue districts in Greater New York. If your official residence is at Tuxedo or at Newport, or Tarrytown. or somewhere in New Jersey, you must make your return to the deputy collector for the district in which the town is situated.

Segregates the Wife's Income.

Most owners of real estate who will be called upon to file returns will do so as individuals, rather than as the president or treasurer of a corporation, and a large proportion of owners are women. If husband and wife render separate returns, only the income and deductions of the husband or wife (as the case may be) who renders the return shall be included; but if separate returns are not rendered by both husband and wife, the income and deductions of both husband and wife shall be included separately, provision for which is made in the form.

Thus, there is a complete segregation of the wife's income from the husband's. She can render a separate return if she so elects, but if she prefers to join with him in making one return do for both, she must, nevertheless, give an account of her separate income. There are provisions expressly intended for divorced or separated couples. A return must be made by every person having a net income exceeding $3,000 per annum, unless he (or she) is married, when the exemption is $4,000.

The taxpayer must state (in answer to question 12) what his income is from salary or wages, (13) from his profession or vocation, (14) from his business, trade, commerce, or sales, or dealings in property, whether real or personal; (15) his income from rents, (16) his interest from bank deposits, notes and mortgages; (17) what he receives as interest on bonds, mortgages or deeds of trust, or similar obligations of domestic corporations, joint stock companies, or associations and insurance companies; (18) all incomes received from guardians, trustees, executors, administrators, agents, receivers or other persons acting in a fiduciary capacity.

He must also give an account (see question 19) of his partnership gains and profits, whether distributed or not, and (21) any royalties, oil wells, patents, franchises, or other legalized privilege. Finally, if the government has overlooked any source of income he has, he must give an account of that also, which is one of the new questions you will have to answer.

General Deductions.

After one has set down all the items of his income, he can turn over on to the next page of the form of return and proceed to make deductions. But this time he will be called upon to give the why and the wherefore of the deduction claimed. He may deduct the amount of necessary expenses actually paid within the calendar year, in carrying on any individual business, but he must not include personal, living or family expenses, or partnerships or cost of merchandise. Amounts paid for the permanent improvement of property are not proper expense reductions.

A taxpayer may deduct all the interest which he has paid during the year on his personal indebtedness, all his city, county, State and National taxes, the losses he has actually sustained during the year in trade, or arising from fires, or storms, and not actually compensated for by insurance or otherwise. He must, however, state of what the loss consisted, how it was sustained, and how it was determined to be a loss. He can also deduct (under item 33) all debts past due which have been actually ascertained to be worthless and which have been charged off within the year. But you must state hereafter what the debts consisted of, when they were created, when they became due, and how they were actually determined to be worthless.

Depreciation Charge.

An amount may also be charged off to represent a reasonable allowance for the exhaustion of property arising out of its use or employment in business. No deduction shall be made for any amount of expense of restoring property, or making good the exhaustion thereof for which a deduction is claimed elsewhere in the return.

With the next return you must state what the property is or was on which depreciation is taken. If buildings, the date of their erection must be given, the material of which they are constructed, the value of the buildings on January 1, and the percentage of depreciation claimed.

The question of the proper percentage to be charged off annually for the depreciation of buildings, to be allowed in figuring offsets to meet requirements of the income tax law, was submitted last April by the Real Estate Board of New York to a special committee. The report of the committee was to the effect that a schedule, such as one prepared by the Chicago Real Estate Board, is not practical, as each building should be considered as a unit in figuring depreciation, and such a schedule in order to be comprehensive would have to be so elastic that it would be of little practical use. (Albert B. Ashforth, Frank D. Ames, Edward C. Camman, John H. Blood, and William H. Shelton constitute the committee.)

The Chicago Real Estate Board has adopted the following schedule:

"Fireproof steel buildings and reinforced concrete buildings: Depreciation one per cent on buildings five years old or less, and two per cent. on buildings more than five years old.

"Mill constructed buildings and fireproof apartment buildings: Depreciation two per cent. on buildings five years old or less; three per cent. on buildings more than five years old. Brick and lath buildings, including ordinary flat buildings: Depreciation three per cent. to four per cent.

"Old frame and nearly obsolete buildings: Depreciation five per cent. and upward.

"Where the value of the power plant and machinery, including elevators, can be separated from the total value of the building, compute depreciation at ten per cent. on it; the remainder being figured at the percentage heretofore named."

Collecting at the Source.

The feature of withholding the tax at the source has been the cause of much uncertainty. An income which is not fixed or certain, and not payable at certain periods, or is indefinite or irregular as to amount or time of accrual, is not withheld at the source, but must be listed in the annual return of the individual and the tax paid by him. The incomes of real estate agents, of architects and other professional persons compensated on the commission basis come under this head.

For example: When an agent, or an architect, or engineer, receives the sum of five thousand dollars as a commission or a fee, a deduction therefrom is not to be made by the payer; but if one should receive a retainer of $5,000 per annum, and the exemption claimed is $4,000, one thousand of such income will be taxed and the tax withheld at the source. Dividends on capital stock or from the net earnings of corporations and joint stock companies or associations and insurance companies subject to the tax are excepted. Nor shall the compensation of officers and employees of a municipality or State, such as public school teachers, firemen, policemen, etc., be included as gross income.

Claims for exemption and deductions may be filed with the withholding agents, and claims for deductions may be filed with the collector, not later than thirty days before March 1. Withholding agents should not file their annual returns until after the expiration of the time allowed persons to file claims for exemptions and deduction. The tax withheld at the source will be paid to the collector of the district.

All assessments will be made by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue at Washington, and all persons will be notified of the amount for which they are respectively liable on or before the first day of June of each year, and the assessment is to be paid on or before the 30th of June.

According to the latest ruling of the Internal Revenue Commissioner, income derived by partnerships from state and municipal bonds or other sources which would be tax-exempt if received directly by any individual member of the partnership, is subject to the tax if it comes through the partnership.

Tax on Scrip Dividends.

According to the latest ruling of the Treasury Department, "scrip certificates issued by a corporation to its stockholders, in lieu of dividends, such scrip certificates bearing interest payable semi-annually and redeemed at a specified time not longer than one year from date of issue, are not corporation obligations similar to bonds, mortgages, or deeds of trust, and the interest payable thereon will not be subject to withholding except when the amount exceeds $3,000.

PROBING CITY'S LAND BUYING

Method of Making Awards in Condemnation Proceedings to be Investigated by the Board of Aldermen — Excessive Prices Paid

THE Board of Aldermen means to make a thorough investigation of the methods pursued in condemnation proceedings. The board has appointed a committee of seven and has empowered and directed the seven to inquire whether the laws and ordinances are being faithfully observed in relation to the methods employed to fix the values, amounts awarded, assessed valuations and any and all other matters relating to the acquisition of real property by the city.

The action was taken on the recommendation of the Committee on Codification of Ordinances. The members of the committee have had before them Messrs. Ollendorf, Mayo and Kenny, Assistant Corporation Counsels, and they became convinced that there is ample grounds to warrant an investigation as to the methods adopted in determining the values of property taken over by the city under condemnation proceedings, and this conclusion is based upon the fact of the excessive margin of valuations between certain short periods just prior to the city acquiring such properties, and the excessive amounts, in many instances, awarded over and above the assessed valuation.

A report from the Codification Committee says that in one instance the amount awarded was 219 per cent. in excess of the assessed valuation, in another instance 149 per cent., and in more than one instance 140 per cent., as will be seen by the annexed table "A" (prepared by the committee), which enumerates the properties, the amount awarded, the assessed valuations and amounts awarded over the taxable value in each of the instances cited.

Average increase of awards over assessed valuations, 64.1 per cent.
Does not include any proceedings in which the award furnished no clear-cut basis of comparison.

The committee also submitted a table "B" which describes the property and the assessed valuation for the year immediately prior to authorization of acquisition, which shows in the aggregate a probable excess of awards of $5,802,351 over and above assessed valuations of the sixteen parcels of properties enumerated therein, being an average increase of awards over assessed valuations of over 64 per cent.

There is, of course, another side to the case. Undoubtedly the system in vogue in this State for many years has been abused oftentimes, and it will not be long before it will be superseded by a better system. It has wronged both the city and the owner. The latter is usually deprived of income from his property for a long period. Financial embarrassment and even poverty have resulted in some instances. Commissioners, taking all the hardships into account, have felt obliged to award damages in excess of real values. All these things will be looked into by the investigating committee. A number of cases of financial embarrassment and actual poverty as a consequence of the city failing to pay promptly for property acquired in the proceedings for the extension of Seventh avenue have been brought to the attention of Mayor Mitchel and Comptroller Prendergast.

The special committee of investigation, appointed on the recommendation of the Codification Committee consists of Aldermen Squiers, Pendry, Carroll, Chorosh, Kochendorfer, Wendel and Robitzek.

THE CITY'S REAL ESTATE.

Comptroller's Annual Report of Assessed Valuations Discloses an Increase.

The assessed valuation of the city's real estate holdings is $1,447,547,869. Of this, $1,429,491,360 is within the city limits. The figures are contained in a report by the Comptroller printed in the City Record.

Compared with the figures of 1913 the value of the property shows an increase of $71,104,589. The increase in land values reaches the large figure of $41,689,078, while in the value of buildings and other improvements it totals $29,253,632.

The land and improvement valuations of city owned property outside of the city is $18,056,509, an increase over 1913 of $161,879. This property is land up-State used for water supply purposes.

Park lands are valued on the tax books at $641,336,110, an increase of more than $9,000,000 since 1913. The real estate in charge of the Department of Education figure is $111,331,100, which is but $78,450 more than the previous year.

BRONX TRANSIT LINES.

In Operation and Under Construction—An Evidence of Growth.

ADEQUATE and proper transportation facilities are of paramount importance to a community, without which, its development must necessarily lie dormant. For many years this condition was experienced in the Borough of the Bronx when, with but one transit line, the Third Avenue Railway connecting it with the Borough of Manhattan, the development of the borough was only mediocre in comparison with its development since 1904, when construction work on the subway and elevated railroad to West Farms was commenced. The building of that line created an impetus to real estate improvement which has resulted in a most remarkable building activity, surpassing every other borough in New York City and every other city and community in the United States.

The West Farms subway and elevated railroad extends only 3.61 miles, or less than one per cent. of the 438 miles of streets and avenues legally opened in the Borough. Still, over $100,000,000 has been invested in real estate improvements along that route during the past ten years, while $200,000,000 has been invested in all other sections of the Borough during the same period.

The statement, therefore, is irrefutable that the development of a community is governed to a great extent by its facilities for transportation. With that fact in mind one is justified in being optimistic of the future of the Borough of the Bronx, as many miles of new subways and elevated railroad extensions are now in course of construction, as indicated in the following table of the mileage of transit lines exclusive of trolley lines:

TRANSIT LINES IN THE BRONX.
IN OPERATION AND UNDER CONSTRUCTION.

Line.	Now in Operation. Miles.	Under Construction. Miles.	Total Miles.
Third Ave. elevated lines..	4.84	....	4.84
West Farm subway and elevated	3.61	....	3.61
N. Y., Westchester & Boston R. R.....	8.08	....	8.08
Harlem Railroad.....	7.69	....	7.69
Third Avenue Extension:

Ninth Ave. Extension to River Ave.	....	.43	.43
West Farms Extension to 241st St.	....	4.61	4.61
Third Ave. Elevated R. R. third-tracking.	....	4.84	4.84
New subway and elevated to Mosholu Parkway...	....	5.38	5.38
New subway and elevated to Pelham Bay.....	....	6.85	6.85
Total miles.....	24.22	23.68	47.90

While the New York, Westchester & Boston Railroad is included in the lines in operation, its influence on the development of the borough has thus far been immaterial, and the Harlem Railroad, although in operation, is not generally patronized as its rates of fare are prohibitive.

Many new improvements are expected along the lines of the new routes, particularly along Jerome and White Plains avenues, where there are numerous large parcels of undeveloped acreage, which require only proper transportation facilities as an incentive for extensive building operations.

Fire Commissioner Adamson has turned back to the city nine pieces of real estate no longer needed by his department, but valued at $350,000. The property can be sold and the proceeds put in the treasury. As the owners will pay taxes on the property and the sum they pay for it will earn interest for the city, the taxpayers will get a double benefit. Practical municipal economy.

Brooklyn real estate is undoubtedly hindered in its development by the slowness of the B. R. T. in adding to its transportation facilities. People hesitate before moving to Brooklyn because of the discomfort they fear they will have to undergo on the crowded traffic lines. But it must be admitted that any public service corporation, however wealthy and skilfully managed, would have difficulty in keeping up with the rapid growth of Brooklyn.

The subway fire with the resulting blockade disclosed to what great extent the city is now dependent upon the underground railroad system for its transportation. The elevated and surface lines, which ten years ago were equal to the work, were overflowed far beyond their capacity when the crowds were shut off from the subway on Wednesday morning. Suppose the subway system had never been built—where would the people have gone?

It is the story of human progress in America that from time to time we must raise our standards. We outgrow the old standards of culture, of wealth, of industrial efficiency and of values, and set higher marks for our achievement. We never as a people go back. Never had we higher standards than now; never shall we see them lower. In the real estate field sooner or later investors in plenty will grow up to the new marks, take what they want and pay the price.

Don't Worry About New York.

The letter of Mr. John L. Parish printed in the Record and Guide of last week contains an unusually candid and sound analysis of the existing depression in New York real estate. Mr. Parish does not exaggerate the facts as did Mr. William E. Harmon. Neither does he misinterpret the causes. The general conditions, on the importance of which Mr. Harmon insisted, have undoubtedly contributed most effectually to real estate inactivity and liquidation, but the chief cause is, as Mr. Parish points out, the over-built condition resulting from an excessive increase in land values, particularly in the central parts of the Borough of Manhattan. It was found possible to persuade wholesale merchants to move to modern buildings uptown and to pay larger rents for these accommodations; and it was erroneously concluded that this process could be continued indefinitely without provoking a disastrous reaction.

The ability of speculative builders to erect twelve or sixteen-story structures on narrow side streets did much to stimulate an unwholesome activity. Values throughout the whole district were advanced on the supposition that the process of removal and rapid improvement would not cease to be as profitable as it had been; a large amount of building followed merely as the result of the advance.

Property owners could not afford to pay increased taxes without making some attempt to get increased income, and the only way in which that could be done was to erect a modern building. Thus the evacuation of the lower part of the city was coincident with the inflated development of the middle part, and the result was a condition which forced lending institutions to count absolutely on a continuation of the process.

When a city commits an economic error such as this, compensation has to be paid. The penalty has been severe, and in all probability it is not fully paid even yet. Rents have already been reduced, and the reduction has already had the beneficial effect of encouraging businesses to continue or to resume which otherwise would have been obliged to stop. Land values have been reduced also in many parts of the borough. Whether they have been reduced as much as they need to be remains to be seen. It all depends upon the disposition of buyers to pay the prices which are still asked for property; and no one can tell how far the desire to purchase will go as soon as confidence returns and an actual business demand for property comes into existence.

But one thing is certain. The next period of active and profitable business will bring with it some surprises for the New York real estate market. When the recovery does come, it will come quickly, and there will be lots of it. As we pointed out last week, a city of the size of Cleveland has been added to New York since the period of depression began—so far without having had any positive effect on real estate values. When this latent value producing power gets released, it is likely to produce some astonishing consequences. New York has suffered, as Mr. Harmon has pointed out, from being deprived of some very important sources of business, but it will also gain from its ability to take advantage of the fact that hereafter American merchants and manufacturers will be bidding for foreign markets. The development of the foreign trade is bound to be more beneficial to New York than to any other one manufacturing city or port.

Brokaw Brothers' Move.

The leasing by Brokaw Brothers of the site of the one-time Cafe de Paris, on Broadway just south of 42d street, is a most substantial and encouraging bit of news. It takes out of the market a piece of property which has long been a source of weakness to the neighborhood in which it is situated, and it converts that property from a source of weakness into one of strength. Times Square and its neighborhood needs precisely this kind of development. It has suffered from the one-sided nature of the trade activity which has been carried on in its vicinity. The enormous theatrical and restaurant business which has been carried on thereabouts has submerged other forms of business. There have, of course, been erected, both on Times Square and to the south of it, a number of large office buildings that have been rented to an unusually good class of tenants, but no large retail stores have been established in the neighborhood, and the smaller stores are, for the most part, of inferior quality.

The leasing by Brokaw Brothers of the site is the first indication of a disposition on the part of substantial retail firms to get situated in the district. There is no reason why the site should not be an eminently available one for a business of this kind. It will have certain disadvantages compared to the site of Fifth avenue soon to be occupied by Rogers Peet & Co., or the site of Brooks Brothers on Madison avenue, but it will also have certain advantages. It will have the advantage of much better means of communication with the whole of Greater New York reached by the new dual subway system. The Brokaw store can obtain direct access to the Seventh avenue and perhaps to the Broadway subways; and in both cases the access will be to express stations.

Just how much advantage this will be remains to be seen. Large retail stores frequently seem to flourish in comparatively inaccessible locations. At present, for instance, Greeley Square is, on the whole, less accessible than Times Square, but it contains several of the most prosperous large retail businesses in the city. The ability of Wanamaker's to maintain itself on lower Broadway is a great tribute to the service which that shop renders to its customers. But, in all probability, the future of New York will differ in this respect from its past. The dual subway system will revolutionize the transit systems of the city. It will offer means of transit so superior to other means of transit and so excellent and cheap that its routes will determine both the distribution of population and the development of business.

It is probable that under these new conditions a store like Wanamaker's will have to move to a location which will make it more accessible to a larger number of people. An increasing centralization of business in peculiarly convenient locations seems to be the inevitable result of such a change in transit conditions. As the Record and Guide has frequently pointed out, the area between Long Acre and Greeley Squares and the Pennsylvania station seems to be marked as the most available region for large retail establishments in the Borough of Manhattan, and the decision of Brokaw Brothers to move into the district helps to confirm this view. As soon as business recovers and more business men can undertake new enterprises a rapid development of this district is likely to take place.

Where the Hudson Can Be Bridged.

The Hudson River bridge scheme is dead. Only one county on the New Jersey side could be prevailed upon to petition the Governor to appoint a new commission in accordance with an act passed by the Legislature last winter. The cardinal objection was the enormous cost. Without a promise of a compensating return. South of the Highlands the lordly Hudson is not likely ever to be bridged. A combination railroad and highway bridge between Fort Montgomery and Anthony's Nose would be a great convenience to the New York Central lines and also to the New Haven lines, and would make the Interstate Park accessible from the east side of the river. When the great question of terminal improvements is settled in this city the New York Central may be in a position to propose to the State of New York the erection of a combination bridge under an agreement for a division of the cost. The counties on the west shore would surely be willing to assume a large part of the cost in return for the benefit that would come from a direct connection with the Grand Central Station. The resulting enlarged summer traffic on the New York, Ontario and Western and the Ulster and Delaware railroads would alone warrant the investment for these corporations, while the annual saving to the Central and the New Haven from the reduction of freight handling and lightering between the two sides of the river would be large. Strange it is that a link which would serve so many interests able to share the cost was not built long ago.

For Equality in Taxation.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

I have read with some interest the letter of Mr. William Lustgarten in your valued edition of December 19, and can see nothing therein contained which furnishes the least answer to the points which I outlined, indicating the fallacy of the Single Tax theory.

In my last letter to the Record and Guide I pointed out that the Single Tax claim that the untaxing of improvements to real estate would be an inducement to owners of vacant property to improve it; also that the incentive to improve vacant property depends upon the law of supply and demand. Will an owner of vacant land erect an improvement on it if it is certain that he cannot rent the land when improved, just because he will not be compelled to pay any tax on the improvement? In other words, will A, the owner of a piece of vacant land worth, let us say, $30,000, build upon it an improvement worth $50,000, if he is sure that after he has spent the additional $50,000 he can procure no income from the improved land, but that he will be compelled to carry a non-income, unproductive parcel of improved property in which he will then have invested $80,000 instead of $30,000 because of a law which tells him he need not pay any tax on the $50,000 improvement?

On the other hand, if there is no law untaxing improvements and A, the vacant land owner, sees that by adding $50,000 to his $30,000 vacant land investment he can convert an unproductive parcel of vacant property into an income producing, profitable investment, will he not immediately improve his property if he can raise the price of the improvements?

Mr. Lustgarten's only answer to this is that if there is a profit under the present system in building houses which are taxed, there ought to be more profit for the owner if they are untaxed. This is no answer at all. It begs the question. It does not meet the point at issue, if it be assumed to be true. The point at issue is whether the claim of the Single Taxers, that such a tax furnishes an inducement to owners of vacant property to improve it, is true. I have demonstrated that the only incentive to improve vacant property is the reasonable expectation that there will be a demand for the use of the improved property, whereby the owner can obtain a profitable income on his total investment. As I said before in one of my previous letters, the untaxing of the improvement would not alter the case one iota.

Mr. Lustgarten says, "Mr. Alexander answers himself" when he says that "he buys it either to sell it at a profit to some one who can utilize it and obtain profit out of it or to improve it himself." Mr. Lustgarten then proceeds further and says the Single Taxer proposes to take into the public treasury the monopoly value, i. e., all the increment or increase in value, due to the presence of population and certain other external causes. Mr. Lustgarten has evidently not read all of my letters, because he wholly fails to answer the questions propounded by me in your valued paper of October 31, 1914.

Mr. Lustgarten says there are two classes of property, which we may not morally trade in, (1) human beings, (2) the earth. I don't believe human beings are property. However, accepting his classification, does the Single Tax prohibit trading in the earth, i. e., in parts of the earth? In one part of his article Mr. Lustgarten says that the Single Taxers believe in untaxing improvements which are made by owners of parts of the vacant earth, while in another he says they believe in not trading in the earth at all. How can there be owners of the earth if trading in the earth is prohibited? Surely he does not mean to pass a law compelling all present landowners to hold their lands and prohibiting all other human beings from acquiring them except by descent or inheritance. I presume he intends to mean that it is immoral for an owner of vacant land to gain and own the increase in the value of his land, which is caused by the increase of population in the immediate vicinity of his property and by other acts which do not involve the owner's own labor. If it be immoral for the owner of vacant land to keep such increase in value, why is it not equally immoral for the owner of merchandise and other personal property to retain and gain by a similar increase in the value of personal property?

If, through the unforeseen ravages of nature, through fire and flood, through wind and storm, through volcano and tornado, through untimely frost and prolonged drought, the value of wheat and corn should in the hands of their owners increase greatly in value because of the destruction of a large part of a season's crop, why is it not just as immoral for the fortunate owners of these products to keep this increment of profit as it is for the owners of vacant land to keep their gain, which is brought about by similar causes?

Mr. Lustgarten's reasoning inevitably leads him to the conclusion that the entire basis of existing ownership of all property, both real and personal, involves a certain amount of immorality, inequality and injustice. This may be and probably is true; but it furnishes no honest or valid reason for making a distinction between one kind of property and another, or for confiscating the profits of the owners of one kind of property, i. e., real estate, and in permitting the owners of personalty to keep and enjoy theirs.

Equality is the highest equity. Equal and exact justice to all owners alike is the foundation of liberty. Without equal and uniform justice, liberty becomes a shadow, lacking substance; a form without a soul, a name without a meaning. Without equal justice, liberty is a hollow mockery. To permit the owners of personal property to keep their unearned increment, and to despoil the owners of real estate of theirs is just as much robbery as it is to hold up a citizen on the highway and force him to deliver up his pocketbook; only it is more immoral than highway robbery, because it seeks to accomplish the same result through the forms of law, by appeals to the spirit of the mob, in a secret and invidious way. A wrong committed openly may be seen by all, and redressed immediately, but a wrong commited by appeals to class hatred to vote secretly, to give to those which have not some of that which those who have, is the most invidious and despicable kind of immorality.

Work of the Vacation War Relief Committee.

Editor of the RECORD AND GUIDE:

The Advisory Council of Real Estate Interests desires to call to the attention of real estate brokers and owners the excellent work being accomplished by the Vacation War Relief Committee. The work of this committee is being directed by Miss Anne Morgan, Miss Maude Whetmore, and Miss Gertrude Robinson Smith. The Advisory Council, appreciating the distress and destitution which prevail in New York this winter, is endeavoring to co-operate with the various associations that have been alleviating cases of privation. The Vacation War Relief Committee is adopting a very practical programme, which would particularly appeal to business men who are anxious to assist in work of this character. It primarily gives employment to women who have lost their positions because of war conditions, and to the wives of reservists, in finding permanent positions for these women. Temporary employment is given to women who are out of work by having them make garments and hospital supplies for the European war area. In this manner the Vacation Committee gives employment to people here in New York, and simultaneously relieves the deplorable conditions in Europe.

The members of the Vacation Committee are particularly anxious to be informed by the various real estate companies and financial institutions interested in real estate as to any vacancies that may periodically occur in their clerical staffs, so that they may have an opportunity to fill these positions from the lists of unemployed young women enrolled in their files. The Employment Bureau of the Vacation Committee is free of charge for women seeking professional, commercial or industrial positions. Every effort is being made by the Vacation Committee to employ young women in its temporary work room, in making garments, as well as preparing surgical dressings and bandages for the European hospitals for war refugees. These young women are retained at work until better openings or positions are afforded, with firms or corporations. The Advisory Council believes that if the work of the Vacation Committee as well as its practical business management were thoroughly understood by the real estate interests, there would be no doubt whatsoever that every effort would be made to give employment to young women who have registered with the Vacation Committee, and likewise every endeavor would be exerted to assist the Vacation Committee in relieving deplorable conditions abroad. The New England textile manufacturers have contributed cotton and woolen goods to the work of this committee, and a number of New York people are assisting in the work. The Advisory Council feels that now is the opportune time to call to the attention of real estate owners the effective work being done by this committee. The offices of the Vacation Committee are at 38 West 39th Street, New York City.

Secretary Advisory Council.

The Subway Failure.

Four investigations are going on for the purpose of inquiring into the causes of the electrical blow-out which paralyzed the subway on Wednesday and endangered the lives of hundreds of passengers. When the causes have been fully and accurately determined, as they have so far only in part, science will know what to do to prevent them in the future.

The known facts strongly support the general supposition that more power was being applied from the central station than the cables were intended to carry. The system as a whole, in fact, is overloaded, and was not designed to do the amount of work now being exacted from it. The fault which the public criticises most at the present moment is the absence of sufficient ventilating flues from the tube to the open air to carry off the smoke and fumes which threatened the lives of the passengers in the stalled trains nearest to the scene of the explosion. There is also much indignation at the prison-like construction of the doors and windows and the reported unwillingness of the guards to let the penned-in passengers save themselves by flight.

Experts at the probe which is being conducted by the Public Service Commission have testified that the accident was caused by a short circuit, in turn caused by a breakdown of insulation in a cable; that there is no known way of preventing short circuits; that there have been no improvements making for safer cables since the subway was opened; that more adequate emergency exits are provided in subways and tunnels now building.

The people of New York who trust their lives upon the city railways wish to be fair with the corporations, but they demand decent treatment in return. They want the subways made safe; they want them to be provided with a sufficient number of emergency exits, and they don't want to be penned in like cattle.

BROKAW BROTHERS' LEASE.

Clothing Concern Acquires Old Rossmore Hotel Site For Long Term—Will Improve With Modern Structure.

AFTER passing through a period of years which, from a monetary point of view, was not remunerative for the owners, the site of the one-time Cafe de l'Opera, later Martin's, has been leased to Brokaw Brothers, and will be improved with an eleven-story business building, for their own occupancy. The property is owned by the Pittsburg Building Company, Henry Phipps, which acquired it, together with No. 587 Seventh avenue, in 1907.

The lease, which was closed by William J. Roome & Company, is for a term of twenty-one years, with two renewal privileges, and the rental for the land and building for the first period approximates $3,000,000. It is expected that the new building will be ready for occupancy about Jan. 1, 1916. Negotiations are said to have been in progress upwards of a year.

Salient Details Decided Upon.

Though no architect has been selected, all the salient details of the structure have been decided upon. It will be about 150 feet high, the first story having a height of eighteen feet. It will be in the Italian renaissance style of architecture, the facade being of Indiana limestone. The show windows will form a continuous display space, with the exception of the portion used for entrances to the building.

One of the features of the building will be a central well extending from the second floor to the roof, thereby supplying ample light and ventilation. On the ground floor will be a large arcade, running from Broadway to Seventh avenue.

The building will have a ground area of 11,250 square feet, with a Broadway frontage of 92 feet, the other lines measuring 109 feet in Seventh avenue, 99.11 feet on the north side and 124 feet on the south side. The property is known as 1457 to 1461 Broadway and 589 to 595 Seventh avenue, and is situated 51 feet south of Forty-second street.

Brokaw Brothers are one of the last of the large retail ready-to-wear men clothiers to move uptown. The firm took possession of its present quarters, in Astor place, in 1856, when the city had a population of about 650,000 people. It was the leader in the, then, uptown movement, the Astor place section being but sparsely settled. The main shopping thoroughfare of the day was Broadway, between City Hall and Canal street.

Other Retail Concerns.

In the immediate vicinity were fashionable Colonnade dwellings, on Lafayette place, now Lafayette street; the Astor Place Opera House, the Seventh Regiment Armory, Cooper Union, which opened in 1859; the Mercantile and Astor libraries. About 1862 several prominent retail firms invaded the section, notably A. T. Stewart & Company, which located at Broadway, between Ninth and Tenth streets, now the establishment of John Wanamaker, and subsequently of concerns, including James A. Hearn, Le Boutillier Brothers, James McCreery & Company Brooks Brothers, and John Daniels and others moved into the district.

During the fifty-eight years of business activity Brokaw Brothers have never moved their establishment. Howard C. Brokaw, the active head and president of the company, is the son of Isaac Vail Brokaw, founder of the business. For several years Mr. Brokaw has studied the situation and the decision to move was made only after mature judgment and study of the various existing and projected lines of transit.

On the site, now to be improved, was erected the Rossmore Hotel many years ago, and in its day ranked as one of the finest hostelries in the country, but subsequently, after other hotels were erected, the Rossmore lost its prestige. About twelve years ago Paddy Roach, the politician, took over the hotel, and it became the frequenting place for sporting men. The name was changed to the Saranac Hotel. The hotel closed during the panic of 1907, and then was controlled by one of the large trust companies.

After several years of unoccupancy the Cafe de l'Opera Company was formed and Henri Pruger, of London and Paris, was brought over to become its manager. The place was opened Christmas eve, 1910, but never became popular, and, after a comparatively short career, closed its doors. Martin, the restaurateur, conducted the place for a short while, and since that time the house has been "dark." The new lease will take out of the market one of the most centrally located parcels in the city, but one located in a block which has had to face exceedingly hard times.

Favors Public Improvements.

The Citizens' Union through its Welfare Committee has addressed a letter to the Mayor as Chairman of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, urging the wisdom of pushing at once the necessary public improvements both in the interests of sound economy and for the sake of relieving the extensive unemployment.

It is believed the holding up of such work upon the part of the city on the ground of financial depression would tend to increase that stringency besides setting a bad example to the private employers of labor and the general public. Moreover, it is urged the city could affect a real saving by having as much work as possible contracted for at this time when competition is keen and building materials of all kinds unusually cheap.

The declaration of such a policy and its immediate initiation would, it is thought, act like a tonic on the business and labor world. This same appeal is being sent to each member of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. A copy is also addressed to Judge Gary, as Chairman of the Mayor's Committee on Unemployment and Relief, with a special appeal urging the co-operation of its committee along the same lines.

Favor Tunnel Extension.

While temporary operation of shuttle trains through the Steinway Tunnel is promised by April 1 by President Shonts of the Interboro Rapid Transit Company, this operation will only extend from Long Island City to a point between Third and Lexington avenues, in Manhattan. From that point passengers will be required to come by escalator to the street level and walk a block and a half through the traffic on Forty-second street, to the express station at Grand Central Station, where transfer privileges will be granted without payment of an additional fare.

As an early remedy of that condition a plan has been presented by the Chamber of Commerce of the Borough of Queens to the Public Service Commission which is of importance to all the business interests of Queens Borough. This plan shows the practicability of constructing immediately an extension of the Steinway Tunnel as far as Grand Central Station, at which point the permanent elevators will bring the passengers to the upper level, thus giving a through access to the Grand Central Subway Station at least a year prior to the completion of the entire contract for the diagonal station at that point.

Robert W. Higbie, President of the Queens Chamber of Commerce, and John Adikes, Chairman of the Transit Committee, held another conference last week with Chairman McCall and Chief Engineer Craven of the Public Service Commission, regarding these plans, and were assured that the Commission favored same and will do everything possible to have this extension built immediately. It is a matter of such importance, however, to all the residents of Queens, and many large manufacturers and business interests have written letters to the Public Service Commission urging that an order be issued at once to have this work done.

Testing the Alien Labor Law.

The Public Service Commission has announced that it will appeal immediately from the decision of the Appellate Division, First Department, handed down on December 31, holding unconstitutional the alien labor provisions of the State Labor Law, in order that a final construction of the statute may be obtained from the highest court in the State. Accordingly, the commission's counsel moved this week for an appeal and will endeavor to get the case before the Court of Appeals at once. The State Labor Law provides that none but citizens of the United States shall be employed upon public work and that, so far as possible, preference in such employment shall be given to citizens of the State of New York. The question having arisen in the case of one of the contractors for the new subways, a taxpayer's action was begun in the Supreme Court by Walter E. Heim, a property owner, of No. 1 Madison avenue, for an injunction to restrain the commission from declaring forfeited any subway contract because of the employment of aliens by the contractor. The commission demurred to this complaint, and the demurrer was sustained by the lower court; but on appeal the Appellate Division reversed this decision and held the law unconstitutional. It is this decision from which an appeal will be taken.

Queens No Longer Isolated.

The argument long advanced by real estate brokers and developers that the central and western parts of Queens borough would eventually become urban in their structural character is borne out by the improvements in the Ridgewood section, where thousands of three-story double flats and two-family houses have been built, as well as in Jamaica and the outskirts of Long Island City, where hundreds of similar buildings have been built within the last two years. They are so numerous as to have determined the entire future character of the parts of Queens mentioned. Even Elmhurst, which was originally laid out as a suburban home colony, is fast building up with rows of attached brick dwellings.

The Russell Sage Foundation has built so many attached brick houses at Forest Hills that the name is a misnomer. The surrounding territory must follow with a city environment because, as real estate men point out, fee values there have risen to a point where they are prohibitive for suburban home purposes.

Already, the elevated structures of the new rapid transit routes through these parts of Queens are visible, and before another year has passed trains will in all probability be operated on them. An extensive urban building movement will necessarily follow, and where hills and itinerant frame houses now exist will soon be built an extensive street system and thousands of new housing accommodations. No city is growing faster than is Greater New York.

Even certain parts of the north shore of Queens are feeling the quickening urban building impulse consequent upon rapid transit construction. Astoria, which a few years ago was accessible from Manhattan, primarily, by the Ninety-second street ferry, will soon be within a few minutes' ride by way of a rapid transit route and Queensboro bridge. Apartment house construction is now under way in Astoria, and its shore road lined with old mansions is destined to change to a thoroughfare lined with modern city buildings. The municipality has provided a new city park at Astoria, overlooking Hell Gate, in anticipation of dense population in that section of Queens.

The question presents itself to the minds of real estate investors. What parts of Queens are likely to remain immune from urban contact?

To these investors the Rockaways on the south, and the north shore, from Whitestone Landing to the city line at Douglaston, are destined to remain suburban in structural character because of their situation. The ocean washes the south shore and it must remain a residential and recreative area. The part of the north shore mentioned is of undulating topography, and washed as it is by Long Island sound and a chain of small harbors, nature has determined its residential character. It appeals logically to those who seek detached homes on good-sized plots.

Beechhurst, on the north shore, is already sufficiently improved with substantial detached homes to insure, together with restrictions, its permanency as a suburban home colony. All municipal improvements are installed there and its street system is on the city map and questions of assessments are settled. East of Beechhurst is a continuity of suburban home colonies within the city line. The entire territory is now traffic served by electric trains of the Long Island Railroad as well as by trolley lines that connect with Queensboro bridge. Queens is no longer isolated.

The Governor's Message.

To the mind of real estate owners throughout the State the two recommendations of most importance in Governor Whitman's message to the Legislature this week undoubtedly are the one for the abolition of the State Fire Marshal's office and the one for a State Department of Taxes and Assessments with power to avail something. The Fire Marshal merely duplicates the duties of other State officers, and the present State Board of Tax Commissioners has only advisory power.

In reference to the taxation problems the Governor writes:

"To a large extent our tax law is the result of patch work and makeshift growth, and a thorough revision of its administrative features along scientific and accepted lines is imperative.

"It is not now my purpose to elaborate upon the changes necessary to bring administrative reform in the law governing this highly technical subject. Suffice it to say for the present that in the class of taxes requiring judgment and discretion in fixing the taxpayers' liability the administrative side of the tax law should provide for a complete separation of the function of assessment from that of enforcement and collection of the taxes, and, further, that there should be established a State department of taxes and assessments headed by a body of persons qualified for this particular work, possessed of adequate power to exercise the duties imposed by law, to the end that we may develop a system of taxation making for greater justice toward the people of the whole State.

Merit and Fitness Urged.

"I recommend also that the measure proposed to accomplish this result shall contain a provision that there shall be appointed to subordinate positions in this department those only whose merit and fitness have been ascertained by competitive examinations, as required by the constitution.

"I am convinced that these recommendations can be carried out and the number of State officers, nominally charged with duties connected with the levying and collection of taxes, largely diminished."

In regard to another important matter the Governor says:

"The present condition of the State's finances demands an immediate and drastic revision of the State's payrolls and requires that unnecessary offices, departments and commissions shall be abolished."

Boycotters Must Pay Damages.

Most of the questions of law in the Danbury hatters case were settled years ago, but the later decision of the U. S. Court of Appeals emphasizes the danger to a trade union of violating the Sherman anti-trust law by carrying a boycott too far, or with the intent to break up an employer's business. The present decision of the court brings the guilt of the union home to the responsible individual members, as the same court had previously held that organized labor was not exempt from the penalties of the law against boycotts.

Associate Justice Holmes in rendering the opinion of the court said a plain purpose had been shown to destroy the commerce of the plaintiffs by publishing them on the "we don't patronize list." This purpose determined the quality of the act.

The Danbury hatters proved that they were damaged to the extent of $80,000 by the conspiracy to boycott their product resulting from the strike in their plant in 1902. They asked for triple damages, which were awarded them, together with interest and counsel fees, bringing the total amount up to $252,130. Counsel for the corporation will seek to collect this amount from the 186 members of the hatters' union.

State Conference on Taxation.

The Committee on Arrangements in charge of the Fifth State Conference on Taxation has decided to hold this year's meetings in the Auditorium of the new State Education Building, Albany, January, 19, 20 and 21, 1915.

Invitations are being sent to county officials—attorneys, treasurers, and supervisors; city officials—mayors, comptrollers and assessors; village presidents and assessors and all local town assessors. Following the custom of former years, invitations are also extended to law schools and colleges and universities maintaining courses in economics and finance; local boards of trade and chambers of commerce; commercial and civic organizations, state-wide in membership, and taxpayers generally, who are especially invited to attend and take part in the conference.

Hamersley Home Conveyed.

Catherine L. Hinckley has conveyed to Louis G. Hamersley her half interest in the Hamersley family mansion at 1030 Fifth avenue at the northeast corner of 84th street, on plot 42.2x185, assessed at $350,000. The transfer recalls the famous will case of thirty years ago, which was in litigation until two years ago, when the courts decided that Louis G. Hamersley was entitled to the estate. In the present transaction, the records show that he gave back a mortgage of $212,500, for five years at 4½ per cent. Mr. Hamersley now holds full title to the property.

A Single Tax Colony.

"Free Acres" is a settlement or community six miles west of Summit, New Jersey, controlled, as far as possible, according to the principles of the Single Tax. It was organized to demonstrate the practicability of the system and in order that the residents of the colony might enjoy greater personal and economic freedom than under the conventional forms of government. The land is owned by the Free Acres Association and leased in perpetuity to the residents, but none is sold. It consists of about seventy acres in the Bernardsville Hills, of some 500 feet elevation. It is two miles from the Berkeley Heights station of the D., L. & W. R. R. and about an hour's ride from New York City.

No purchase price is paid by the colonists, only the annual rent of the bare land, fixed by their own elected assessor. This goes to pay all taxes, and the balance is used for surveys, roads, water works, and so on. The present rental is about $15 per acre annually. Most of the colonists take an acre or less.

A few of the houses that occupy the lots are built for permanent use, but most of them are of the bungalow type for summer homes only. A large "Common" is set apart for athletic sports and general use. The old farmhouse is used for a club house and for dances, recreations, public meetings, etc. Outdoor and indoor gatherings are held in which general, economic, social, literary and educational questions are discussed.

Performances are given in an open-air theatre, and the whole spirit of the colony is, as far as practicable, one of good fellowship, mutual helpfulness and liberality in speech and action. The colony is not restricted to single taxers, and all classes are welcomed, with most of the other economic propaganda represented. The settlement includes tradesmen, business and professional men, artists, actors, writers and college men.

EXPECT SEWERS TO DEVELOP TOWN.

North Plainfield Offers Big Opportunity for Realty Development.

For forty years the Borough of North Plainfield in Somerset County, New Jersey, has been waiting for sewers. The improvement is now at hand. Such a statement ordinarily would not carry great weight from an investment standpoint, because any town that had to wait four decades for a sewer system would at once be classed as a community without development, without civic pride and without much virtue as a place for investment.

Not so, however, with North Plainfield. This community is as largely developed from a residential standpoint as is Plainfield, which lies on the south bank of a stream twenty feet wide, forming the county line between Somerset and Union. Plainfield is the "Queen City" of New Jersey, so named because of its being the second wealthiest city in the state and because of its low proportion of foreign residents. North Plainfield has been the victim of geographical conditions. Lying at the foot of the Watchung Mountain, and stretching along the northern bank of Green Brook, it had no natural sewer outlet. Plainfield being a city and in a separate county has a most excellent sewerage disposal plant, but there was no law that would permit North Plainfield to utilize this plant.

North Plainfield, therefore, has been compelled to carry a fearful handicap for years. The community has today 6,000 residents and only two per cent. foreign population, yet has all the advantages and virtues of a first-class community. North Plainfield is the park section of Plainfield, and the splendid public spirit of its citizens has been responsible for the progress and development of the borough, despite its blemish.

The state has finally come to the rescue of the borough of North Plainfield. It has compelled the establishment of a larger and better sewer disposal system which will permit North Plainfield to join Plainfield in its use and benefits. The borough has expressed by vote its willingness to consolidate with the city of Plainfield.

Building investors who are looking for a field of activity in a largely developed section of New Jersey will find North Plainfield a splendid place in which to concentrate their activities.

The ultimate removal of the sewerage disposal plant two miles to the west should make property values advance in this locality, and the fact that it is within five minutes' walk from either one of two stations on the Central Railroad of New Jersey gives it the peculiar advantage of being the only spot in the vicinity of Plainfield within walking distance of commuters' stations which remains undeveloped at the present time.

The Stillwell Avenue Controversy.

Chairman Edward E. McCall, of the Public Service Commission for the First District, has called public attention to the opposition of certain property owners in South Brooklyn to the city's efforts to open Stillwell avenue, near Coney Island. The New Utrecht avenue branch of the Fourth avenue subway is routed through Stillwell avenue, as laid out on the map, from 86th street to Coney Island, but owing to the opposition of property owners to the opening of Stillwell avenue it is possible that the line will have to be changed. The engineers of the commission are now preparing plans to change the line and continue it through 86th street instead of through Stillwell avenue.

In the same vicinity the city of New York is opening a drainage canal and is acquiring some private property, which would front on Stillwell avenue, if opened. Owners of this property, however, are opposing the street opening proceeding. Chairman McCall points out that if such owners are successful in opposing the street opening, they can recover consequently damages for the taking of property in the drainage ditch proceeding, because the access is cut off, and can then force the city to acquire a strip through the remainder of their property for rapid transit purposes and collect awards for that. Then, after receiving damages in both proceedings, the property owners could let the street opening proceeding go through and thereby have access to their property restored.

The Chairman said the Public Service Commission vigorously protests against this sort of thing, and on account of the situation has instructed its engineers to make a study of plans for taking the rapid transit line off Stillwell avenue and continuing it directly along 86th street to a connection with the Sea Beach line.

An Ancient Skyscraper.

Paris sometime ago discovered that the originator of the American skyscraper was not an American architect but a Frenchman, who lived three centuries ago. At the Bibliotheque Nationale there is a volume written by Jacques Perret of Chambery, an architect, which describes a skyscraper of the author's invention. This book was written in 1601.

"This grand and excellent pavilion, in which one can lodge 500 persons in comfort and luxury," was to be of 160 feet frontage, 145 feet in depth and walls ten feet thick. The structure was to rise to a height of twelve stories and was to have a small pavilion on the roof surrounded by terraces. The building was proposed to have a total height of 350 feet. This, of course, could hardly be compared to the present skyscraping structures of New York, but shows clearly that the skyscrapers had been thought of three centuries ago, even if only as day dreams.

Good-Bye to the Fire Horses.

The Board of Estimate and Apportionment has voted a corporate stock issue of $308,000 for the purchase of new motor apparatus for the Fire Department. Of this sum $123,000 provides for the purchase of motor apparatus for the new companies in Brooklyn and Queens, which are to be organized in a short time, and $185,000 is to be used for the purchase of tractors and tenders for present horse-drawn apparatus. Thirty tractors are to be bought and attached to horse-drawn apparatus. These tractors are two-wheeled motors which replace the two front wheels of the horse-drawn apparatus.

The Fire Commissioner has purchased this year 30 tractors and 20 tenders. The appropriation made this week and the purchase of tenders and tractors already made are a part of the progressive motorization of the Fire Department. The Fire Commissioner hopes to complete this motorization during the present administration so that by the end of the present administration there will be no horses in the department.

PRIVATE REALTY SALES.

Properties in the mid-town section figured prominently in the business of the first week of the new year. The announcement that Brokaw Brothers had taken a long lease of the Henry Phipps Estates property on the site of the old Saranac Hotel, just south of the Heidelberg Building, on Broadway, and that they would build a new structure for their own occupancy means another important removal into the new retail district. The new location, however, indicates a deviation from the evident policy of the firms which have recently joined the uptown movement, to obtain sites either on Fifth avenue or in the immediate vicinity of that thoroughfare.

Another interesting deal involved the Wallack's Theatre property which was sold by the Treblig Realty & Construction Company to Bing & Bing. It was given in part payment for a West Side apartment house. According to a current report, another historic playhouse, the Bijou Theatre, is also the subject of negotiations. If the deal is consummated, it is said that the old building will be replaced with a tall mercantile structure.

An important transaction concerned the contemplated opening of a new branch for a large furniture firm, on Sixth avenue, near 45th street. In Long Island City the desirability of Thomson Hill for manufacturing purposes manifested itself in the acquisition by a large music publishing company of a big tract of land which will be improved with a factory building. A probable factor in the selection of this plottage was the fact that it is located a short distance from a station of the new dual rapid transit system that will place it about eight minutes' ride from Broadway and 42d street.

All told, the year made an auspicious beginning, and the week's business may be regarded as unusually encouraging.

The total number of sales reported and not recorded in Manhattan this week was 15, as against 19 last week and 16 a year ago.

The number of sales south of 59th street was 3, as compared with 9 last week and 1 a year ago.

The sales north of 59th street aggregated 12, as compared with 10 last week and 15 a year ago.

The total number of conveyances in Manhattan was 171, as against 95 last week, 16 having stated considerations totaling $518,850. Mortgages recorded this week number 105, involving $2,003,761, as against 51 last week, totaling $738,000.

From the Bronx, 8 sales at private contract were recorded, as against 6 last week and 2 a year ago.

The amount involved in Manhattan and Bronx auction sales this week was $1,517,106, compared with $585,958 last week, making a total for the year of $1,517,106. The figures for the corresponding week last year were $1,087,509 and the total from Jan. 1, 1914, to Jan. 10, 1914, was $2,936,635.

Bijou Theatre May Be Sold.

According to a report yesterday, the old Bijou Theatre, at 1237 and 1239 Broadway, through to 502 and 504 Sixth avenue, has been sold by Mortimer L. Schiff to the Isaac A. Hopper Construction Company, Walter F. Hopper, president. At the offices of Kuhn, Loeb & Company where Mr. Schiff is associated, it was said that the announcement was premature. It was admitted, however, that negotiations were pending for the sale. The property consists of a five-story theatre building with stores and offices on Broadway and the two five-story loft buildings on Sixth avenue, fronting 39.11 feet on Broadway and 41.1 feet on Sixth avenue. If the deal is consummated, it is said that the new owner will raze the present buildings and erect a tall office and loft structure on the site. Last January the Bijou property was sold at auction by Joseph P. Day as a result of a foreclosure suit brought by Felix M. Warburg, against the Bijou Realty Company, Albert F. Sire, president. Encumbrances amounted to about $482,000, and the knock down price was 465,000. Several days later Mr. Warburg conveyed it to Mortimer L. Schiff. The Bijou Theatre was made famous by actors of the old school. It was opened in 1883, replacing what was known as the Theatre Brighton and the Bijou Opera House. In this playhouse Henry E. Dixey made the famous run of six hundred consecutive nights with his production of "Adonis." For years it was the home of comedy and light opera productions. In recent years it has become a moving picture playhouse.

Costly Residence to Be Built.

William B. May & Company have sold for the Barney Estate Company the four-story dwelling, 713 Park avenue, on lot 22x89.9. The house will be demolished and replaced with a modern English basement residence. The 69th street end of the block is occupied by the new residence of Mr. Geraldyn Redmond, which was erected two years ago. The 70th street corner is improved with the residence of Mr. Robert S. Brewster. On the west side of the avenue, between these two streets, the improvements consist of two residences just erected, one belonging to Mr. George Blumenthal, on the 70th street corner, and the other to Commodore Arthur Curtis James, on the 69th street corner.

Wallack's Theatre in Trade.

The Treblig Realty Company bought from the Charter Construction Company, Bing & Bing, the Garland, a six-story apartment house, in the north side of West 139th street, between St. Nicholas and Edgecombe avenues, on a plot of five and one-half lots. In part payment, the sellers took the northeast corner of Broadway and 30th street, a plot of six and a half lots, 95.8 on Broadway and 142.9 in the street, part of which is occupied by Wallack's Theatre. A portion of this property is leasehold and part fee. The plans of the new owners could not be learned.

Mr. Somerville bought the whole block from the Fort Washington Syndicate prior to the big auction sale of several years ago, and it is one of the few blocks in that section which has not yet been improved. It is one block north of the old Somerville residence property, which was leased some time ago by Ben C. Riley, proprietor of the Arrowhead Inn.
